SEYMOUR WINS BIG PRIZE AT 40TH.

At Oxhey yesterday the £750 tournament ended in a win for Seymour, of Molesey Hurst, London, who beat Gaudin, Aldwoodley, Leeds, at the fortieth hole.

More than once it looked as if Seymour would win with more or less ease, but he frittered away chances, particularly so between the end of the second round and the actual conclusion of the match. The Molesey Hurst man took the lead at the first as ne was dead from twenty yards, whereas Gaudin topped his second into the bunker. Gaudin took the next, as, with an eight yards putt, he confidently holed. Seymour visited two bunkers going to the third, but Gaudin likewise played poorly, the hole being halved. Seymour again took the lead with a 4 at the fourth, Gaudin here cutting his drive into the rough and playing the odd on to the green. Following a great drive over the wood at the fifth, Seymour played a puerile mashie into the bunker, but he holed from six yards to win. The sixth was halved, and at the seventh Gaudin was a foot nearer the hole with his approach. Seymour was stymied, and eventually Gaudin won the hole. The latter player squared at the eighth, following a perfect running approach to within eighteen inches of the pin, and, despite a poor drive by Seymour at the ninth, that hole was halved. Gaudin became 1 down again at the tenth, and the match was levelled at the short eleventh, where Seymour found a pot bunker, and then twice was too strong. For the first time in the match Seymour became 1 down at the twelfth, his approach being very short, whilst Gaudin almost holed his. Seymour took the advantage of the bank on the green at the thirteenth, and then half-stymied Gaudin with his first putt, the Leeds man so losing his advantage. Gaudin putted poorly at the fourteenth, and the Londoner again led, Gaudin played perfectly to the short fifteenth, and squared. The remaining holes of the round were halved, and thus at the eighteenth the match was squared.

Gaudin was round in 75 against 76.

The first two holes in the afternoon were halved, Gaudin driving well, and Seymour showing good judgment on the greens. Seymour twice drove out of bounds going to the third, and despite the fact that he was bunkered, Gaudin took the lead. They were square at the next, Seymour, being fifty yards ahead of Gaudin from the tee, and at the short sixth Gaudin was in the rough, and became 1 down. The seventh and eighth were halved, as was the ninth, Seymour at the last-mentioned hole being weak on the green. Two holes separated the players at the tenth, Gaudin being strong with his second. Seymour was bunkered going to the eleventh, and Gaudin there reduced his deficit. The Leeds player squared at the next, where Seymour was short, and Gaudin got a hard half at the thirteenth. The game was still level at the fifteenth, and at the sixteenth Seymour made what might have been an extremely costly error, as he missed a two feet putt for the half.

One down and two to play, Seymour only got a half at the seventeenth, and, amidst great excitement, the Molesey Hurst man won the eighteenth to square the match. Therefore, the game had to go to the thirty-seventh, which was halved, as were the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth, Seymour having chances, but throwing them away. However, he made no mistake at the fortieth, which he won to gain the premier prize.

ENGLISH LADY CHAMPION.

MISS WETHERED RETAINS TITLE.

Miss Joyce Wethered (Worplesdon) for the second year in succession is the English Close champion of lady golfers. She retained the title yesterday, beating Mrs. Mudford (Hallamshire) by 12 and 11 in the final, of 36 holes over the course of the Lytham and St. Anne's Club.

The weather was dull and threatening all the time play was in progress, but, happily, the rain held off until a few minutes after the decision was arrived at. Miss Wethered throughout the tournament, which commenced on Monday, played very sound golf, except in the third round, when she met Miss Joan Stocker, and was taken to the sixteenth. She won all her matches with comparative ease, and she played in each of the seven heats, not being one of the fortunate 18 of the 73 aspirants for the title who received a bye in the first round. Mrs. Mudford, the runner-up, worked her way through with big margins until she met Miss Gourlay in the semi-final, and was taken to the last green. She had never before been prominent in any competition of note, and was only chosen as a reserve for Yorkshire in the Inter-County Championship finals. She is undoubtedly a sound golfer, but lacks experience of such contests, and that proved a big handicap. Generally her wooden club play was very good, but in the final she lost a lot of ground through unsteadiness when approaching and on the greens.

Miss Wethered made a fine start, and at the seventh held an advantage of six holes. The first she holed in 3. At the second Mrs. Mudford was caught in a bunker, and, taking 6 for the hole, became 2 down. At the third the Yorkshire lady topped her tee shot into the rough, failed to get out, and was short of the green with her fourth, while Miss Wethered was too strong with her approach, and just over the green. The champion won that hole, as she did the fourth, where Mrs. Mudford was at fault, and should at least have halved, as she had played two perfect shots to the green, and then required 5. The fifth was a good half in 3, but at the next two Mrs. Mudford lost in each case. At the sixth she duffed her approach, and was trapped in a bunker, and, failing to get out at the first attempt, she gave up, while the seventh she played well, although she did lose. At the eighth Miss Wethered lost her first hole, when she pulled her tee shot, and played a weak second. In the earlier part of the round Mrs. Mudford was obviously nervous. She, however, after winning the eighth, seemed to gain more confidence. She halved the ninth in 3, playing the hole perfectly, while at the tenth, one of the most difficult holes on the course, she was caught in one of the numerous bunkers, but made a brilliant recovery, and effected a half. The next, the longest hole on the course—about 550 yards—was again divided in 5 when Mrs. Mudford, who was short of the green in 3, holed a twelve-yard putt. Miss Wethered won the twelfth in 3, thanks to a brilliant approach to within a yard of the pin, and she also took the next two. The champion was in one bunker and out into another at the fifteenth, and picked up, but won the sixteenth, which made her 8 up, and that was how she stood at the end of the first round, the seventeenth and eighteenth being halved.

Starting the second round with a deficit of eight holes was a big task for anyone, but against such a player as Miss Wethered it called for a superhuman effort. The resumption, however, was very interesting. At the first (or nineteenth), the length of which is 210 yards, Miss Wethered was hole high from the tee, while Mrs. Mudford was short of the green. The Yorkshire lady holed out her mashie shot, and Miss Wethered holed her putt, a half in 2 resulting. The next was halved in 5, but Mrs. Mudford might have won that. At the twenty-second Mrs. Mudford, after the better tee shot, placed her second in a bunker, and, failing to get out at the first attempt, lost again. The next was halved, and then Miss Wethered won the following two, and the match finished on the twenty-fifth green.

ST. ANDREW'S SWIMMING GALA.

PEMBROKE DEFEATED.

A most successful swimming season in Leinster was practically wound up last night with the St. Andrew's College gala at Iveagh Baths. The biggest crowd of the week was present, and enjoyed capital sport. A strong Leinster "pick" defeated Pembroke by 3-1 in the polo match, but the losers missed the services of Ellerker. Dr. Sexton (Dublin S.C.) made one of his few appearances this season, and qualified for the open handicap final, which he was greatly fancied to win, but in one of the best finishes of the night he was beaten a touch by G. V. Chute, who is minus a leg. The veteran, H. M. Dockrell, turned out in the Siamese race, in which he was partnered by his son, and unfortunately when they had the event ten yards from the finish their ties broke, and J. H. Wallace, the School Champion, and Orr, scored easily, being the only pair of four to finish. Mrs. Imrie distributed the prizes. Details:—

22 Yards (Novices)—G. Lett (17), 1; J. R. Wallace (6), 2; H. Lane (17), 3.

Senior Championship (100 yards)—J. H. Wallace, 1; L. A. W. Orr, 2; H. Dockrell, 3. Won by 2 yds.; a foot between second and third. Time—81 secs.

66 Yards (boys) (open)—The following qualified—J. Morgan (13), A. Tatlow (12), A. Dowds (11), J. Crothers (10), W. Loughren (10), R. F. Leitch (7), J. O'Connor (7), J. C. Hopkins (6). Final—Tatlow, 1; Crothers, 2; Morgan, 3. Inches between first three. Time—49 secs.

88 Yards (open)—The following qualified—M. Hogan (19), T. Byrne (19), L. A. W. Orr (18), Dr. Sexton (7), G. V. Chute (13), J. Allen (4), K. Doyle (2). Final—Chute, 1; Sexton, 2; Hogan, 3. Only 4 swam. Won by a touch; a yard between second and third. Time—66 secs.

Diving Championship (club)—T. D. Wallace, 1; A. Dowds, 2; J. H. Wallace, 3.

66 Yards (club, past and present)—Final—R. Davin (23), 1; A. B. Brooks (13), 2; J. M'Clean (14), 3. 9 swam in final. Won by ½ yard; 1 yard between second and third. Time—61 secs.

Siamese Race—J. H. Wallace and Orr, 1; Dowds and Strahan, 2. 4 competed. H. M. Dockrell, the Irish crack of a decade ago, swam with his son, and was winning easily when their "ties" broke.

Water Polo—Rest of Leinster beat Pembroke by three goals (Purcell, Cullen, and J. Egan) to one (Leitch).

PRESENTATION TO MR. P. J. O'NEILL.

At the Iveagh Baths last night Dr. J. Beckett, on behalf of the ladies of the Pembroke and Dublin Clubs, presented Mr. P. J. O'Neill (Sandycove) with a gold fountain pen and case, suitably inscribed, as a mark of their appreciation of his services as handicapper and starter in the ladies' races during the season.

The main road to Enniscorthy is joined at Woodenbridge. The first of the competitors is due at Enniscorthy at 6.35 p.m. The entries are as follow:—P. Scallan, 4½ B.S.A. and sidecar; S. A. PHŒNIX PARK MEETING.

SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

The customary well-arranged programme has been provided for to-day's meeting at Phœnix Park, and the sport promises to be interesting. The two-year-olds are well catered for, three of the seven events being set apart for first season horses, and the much talked of match between My Violet and Sunny Bird should of itself prove a strong attraction. The distance, weights, and jockeys will be the same as at Dundalk, where the verdict in favour of the first-named was a neck, but the connections of Sunny Bird considered he was unlucky to lose, and hence the match. The La Touche Plate, the principal event of the day, ought to provide a good race, and it may be won by

PATSY or MILEWATER.

CROSS-COUNTRY RUNNING.

DONORE HARRIERS.

Run this afternoon from the club headquarters, Kilmainham, at 3.30. Intending members and visitors invited.

KEMPTON PARK.

QUEEN ELIZABETH HANDICAP

WON BY FIDDLE-DE-DEE.

It is remarkable what a number of contradictory statements are made nowadays concerning racing. One gleans some apparently authentic information one day to hear its contradiction next. A case in point is Frills. When she won at the previous meeting at Kempton it was authoritatively stated that she would not run again, but that Sir William Cooke intended to at once retire her to the stud. Instead of that she was now again exploited in the October Plate, and, instead of being retained for stud purposes, was sold to Mr. Edge for 850 guineas. Mr. Edge so far has not embarked on the risks of horse-breeding, so, doubtless, Frills will be further seen on the racecourse.

Tut Tut made the journey from Ireland again for the Queen Elizabeth Handicap, which has been reduced one-half in value since she won it twelve months ago. There was not now the same confidence in her prospects as she walked round the paddock, led by her stable companion, Miss Brian Boru. Her appearance suggested anything but victory, for the perspiration ran off her, but her trainer, Grundy, was not all perturbed. "She is always like that before a race," he remarked, and then one remembered that she was in similar plights prior to the Salford Borough Handicap at Manchester. Chi Lo Sa is a nice, compact, medium-sized horse that can better be described as workmanlike than handsome, and Mr. S. Joel, who was present to see him run, made no secret that he expected him to win. The jockeys repeatedly endeavoured to anticipate the start, and when the tapes were eventually released Fiddle-de-Dee and Princess of Mars were in the first flight on opposite sides of the course, and they had the finish to themselves, with only a neck dividing them. The winner is one of the most improved animals in training, in evidence of which is the fact that last year Tut Tut, giving 20lb., beat Fiddle-de-Dee a length. Now there was only 1lb. between them. The handicapper, by giving King Sol 9st. 3lb., makes him out, through the winner, to be the equal of Tetratema, which is, of course, absurd.

The Imperial Produce Stakes was a nice prize for an owner like Mr. George Barclay to pick up. Lord of Burghley stayed the six furlongs, but Pomology, running for the first time, swerved and ran very green.

Some jockeys' engagements for Saturday are:—Jelliss, Abbot's Trace, Lucky Flight or Fornovo; Bullock, Shoemaker and Illuminator; Lister, Statuary and Irish Cousin; K. Robertson, Lillywhite; Wheatley, Desmond House; Rose, Hong Kong; Lane, Ponteland; Smyth, Long Corrie and Toilet; Crickmere, Eaton Maid.

DUKE OF YORK STAKES.

SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

LONDON, Friday.

From a purely racing point of view, the outcome of the first day's programme can only be described as disappointing, but that was no fault of the executive. With no less than 5,000 sovs. allotted to the half-a-dozen races and the assurance of perfect galloping, one imagined that owners would rise to the occasion. The field for the Duke of York Stakes will not exceed about a dozen runners, as per the appended list of

PROBABLE STARTERS AND JOCKEYS.
ABBOT'S TRACE (Lord Dewar), 4, 8-13..H. Jelliss.
PARAGON (Sir E. Paget), 4, 8-9....A. Balding.
LACROSSE (Mr. Sol Joel), 4, 8-5....B. Carslake.
ILLUMINATOR (Mr. E. Short), 4, 8-5..F. Bullock.
GRANDCOURT (Mrs. A. Cox), 5, 8-1....M. Beary.
FRANKLIN (Lord Carnarvon), 3, 7-9...Donoghue.
NORTHERN LIGHT (Mr. Cazalet), 3, 7-8 J. Brennan.
SORREL (Lord H. de Walden), 4, 7-5 ....(—).
GOLDENDALE (Lord Allendale), 3, 7-4....Elliott.
STATUARY (Sir J. Rutherford), 4, 7-3...W. Lister.
THE WIDOW MALONE (Mr. A. Cunliffe), 4, 6-13 ....Jas. Doyle.
*LADY SLEIPNER (Mrs. H. Nugent), 3, 6-5 ....(—).

*Doubtful starter.

No notice was taken to-day on the course of the affair, and it may be more open than is popularly imagined. Abbot's Trace has nothing in hand of Paragon on the book. In fact, he is badly handicapped with Gilpin's charge, who, if training reports from Newmarket can be depended on, has not received an orthodox training for such an important race. I hesitate in passing over Paragon, but, knowing of the well-being of

ABBOT'S TRACE,

I give Pickering's charge the preference, and mention Northern Light and Statuary as being worth the notice of place bettors. Should Statuary fulfil here the expectations of Reginald Day, we may expect Earna to blossom into a strong Cambridgeshire favourite. For the minor races to-morrow my selections are:—

Brentford Selling Handicap—Lumpy.
Waterloo Plate—Doagh colt.
Kempton Park Nursery—Pondoland.
Rivermead Welter—Evander.
Black Prince Stakes—Lady Sleipner.

LONDON BETTING—YESTERDAY.

Tishy became a firmer favourite for the Cesarewitch, 9 to 2 being the top closing offer. Devizes was well backed at 15 to 2, and Harrier was also supported at the rate. Front Line shortened to 9's, and Yutoi was saleable at 10's. The only business on the Cambridgeshire was the opposition to, and backing of, Lady Sleipner, 25's being laid and offered to money. BOXING.

A CHALLENGE FOR BECKETT.

Bert Kenny, a heavy-weight boxer from New York, at present in Dublin under the management of Young John L. Sullivan, is anxious to arrange a match with Joe Beckett, Boy M'Cormick, or any other heavy-weight on this side of the Atlantic. Kenny claims a victory over Frank Moran, who defeated Beckett in two rounds.

RATHKEALE.

GOOD RACING.

DOUBLE FOR H. HARTY.

Many of the visitors to Limerick for the meeting on the two previous days there waited over for Rathkeale, which turned out a much more interesting fixture than was anticipated. While fields were not very large, they were strong enough to provide good racing.

Banner County was for a long time favourite for the Deel Hurdle Race, but eventually Waving Queen was given the preference. The latter never flattered, and Vivace held such a long lead for a mile that it looked as if she had the race won. Banner County, however, quickly got to her on the far side of the course, and, drawing away, won in easy style. Banner County is now under the care of H. Harty, and the Croom trainer also saddled the winner of the Rathkeale Plate. This was Windfield, who won a steeplechase at Limerick. The heavy impost of 12st. 1lb. made little difference, for Mr. O'Malley's horse was always galloping over the other two, and, with Beauvharrig Clug bolting after two miles, and Meadowside falling on the flat three furlongs from home, the favourite had what was practically a bloodless victory.

Red Planet, Spellbound, and Olivenna were all preferred to Fergus Spray for the Knockawad Flat Race, but the last-named, jumping off in front, led all the way. Red Planet lost ground at the start, and, though improving his position through the race, could never get on terms with the leaders. The last two races were tame events, Here Goes scoring in runaway style in the Visitors' Plate, and Diploma winning the Desmond Cup. In the latter instance, an objection to the winner was lodged on behalf of the owner of Nora, the grounds being crossing and boring at the last fence, but this was overruled. Details:—

WORKHOUSES TO GO.

COUNTY WICKLOW'S SCHEME.

By seven votes to three, a conference of delegates and officials of the Wicklow County Council and Boards of Guardians in the County Wicklow decided to adopt Dail Eireann's scheme of reducing the county expenditure, by abolishing three of the existing workhouses and setting up in their place a county hospital.

A letter from Dail Eireann stated that, by cutting the establishment charges and the army of officials, the money reached, in greater proportion than heretofore, the poor, for whom it was collected under this scheme. The scheme must go through. The Department undertook to protect officials' interests.

Mr. S. J. Doyle, Secretary to the County Council, said that the upkeep of 329 workhouse inmates cost £27,145; outdoor relief for 1,530 cost £7,675.

CHILD'S MAINTENANCE.

SYSTEM OF "SUB-LETTING."

Conflicting evidence was given before the Recorder in Green street Courthouse, Dublin, yesterday in a case in which a claim for £10 was made for the maintenance of a child. The plaintiff was Bridget Reynolds, of Upper Rutland street, who stated that in March, 1920, the defendant, Sarah Chandley, of Palmerston place, gave her a child to keep, for which she was to be paid at the rate of 25s. a month. Later the defendant said that the plaintiff could adopt the child, but in August, 1921, she took away the child by force.

Mr. Cusack, for the defendant, said that as regarded the adoption of the child there was no agreement, and also the defence was that the defendant did pay for the maintenance.

Mr. P. H. O'Reilly, for the plaintiff, said that at the Police Court the issue was not maintenance, but assault.

The defendant said that she paid the plaintiff a bulk sum of £5, and the reason she remembered the amount was that she paid three other people similarly on the same day. There was no money due for maintenance.

The Recorder asked what was the defendant, and Mr. O'Reilly said that the defendant was paid for these children, and that she "sub-letted."

The Recorder gave a decree for the full amount claimed.

ALLEGED POACHING.

NETS SEIZED BY LADY.

An encounter which two ladies had with men, who were alleged to have been poaching, was told at the Kildare Petty Sessions on Thursday, when John Delany, of Athy, was summoned for trespassing in pursuit of game on Bert Demesne, and George Roche was charged with having assaulted Mrs. M. Geoghegan, the owner of the demesne.

It appeared from the evidence that Mrs. Geoghegan saw the defendants on the land. They carried nets, ferrets, and spades. Mrs. Geoghegan tried to take a bag, containing a ferret, from Roche, and he caught her by the arms and threw her to the ground.

Miss Ackwood, who was staying with Mrs. Geoghegan, said that she was fishing in the Barrow river when she saw the defendants trespassing. They had nets, ferrets, and a spade. She seized the nets. The defendants chased her, but she hid in a hedge for an hour.

When the police arrived, the defendants refused to go away until they had got their property.

Delany was ordered to pay a fine of £2, and the charge against Roche was adjourned.

PETROL CARGO CASE.

THREE BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

The case in which John White, of Thurston road, Liverpool, is charged with having converted to his own use three bills of exchange for £10,000 each which had been given to him in connection with the purchase of a cargo of petrol was again before Mr. Lupton in the Northern Police Court yesterday. When further evidence had been taken, the case was adjourned until Wednesday.

Mr. Dudley White, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Davis), appeared to prosecute; Mr. Edward H. Burne, solicitor, defended the prisoner, and Mr. Gleeson (instructed by Mr. James Brady) held a watching brief for witnesses.

William Ernest Fitzsimons was further cross-examined by Mr. Burne. He said that a broker had refused to discount the bills, and, accompanied by Mr. Lind, he visited four or five banks in London with reference to negotiating them.

What reason was given you by the banks for refusing to negotiate? They stated that their directors could not see their way to go into such a transaction with only one firm, the one firm being the Fuel Marketing Company. When I left London I left Lind behind me to try to get the bills negotiated anywhere.

Can you tell me any bank that you visited and at which Mr. White accompanied you? I am perfectly sure, but I will not swear it, that Mr. White was with me at Cox's Bank and at another bank, the name of which I do not recollect. At the time we were going round those banks trying to get the bills negotiated the joint power of attorney was in existence and operative. In the case of the New York Guarantee Society, which was tried, White was not with me, but Lind was.

Do you recollect being told by these people why they refused to negotiate? At the interview I had with them they did not refuse.

Mr. Lupton—Did they refuse? They did not refuse at the time I interviewed them, but I heard afterwards that they did.

Mr. Burne—Can you tell what the reason was for refusing? What they said, I heard, was that they had lost a lot of money on copper and the exchange, and, therefore, they did not wish to go on with the business.

Did you hear that they questioned the stability of the men concerned and who had signed the bills, yourself included? No; on the contrary, the bank manager told me that he was quite satisfied with the references he had got from us, and that they were as good references as had been given by any of their own clients in the bank at the moment.

Mr. Dudley White—That was the manager of the Guarantee Society? Yes.

Mr. Burne—And it included your own reference and the reference of Mr. White as well? Yes.

Under the first power of attorney you and White were to get 10 per cent. each commission? No. The arrangement was that White was to get 10 per cent., and it was arranged between Mr. White and myself that we were to divide that between us with the knowledge of the group. I heard that my name was to be dropped out of the first power of attorney, because Mr. White made a statement asking them to make out the power of attorney in his own name, as he would be able to do the business quicker himself, because I was interfering with him. In the second power my name was dropped out.

Was it ever fully discussed why you should have been dropped out? No, never.

Why did you sign the second power appointing White alone? I put my signature to it, seeing that the others had put theirs to it. At the time the group was formed it was solely to deal with the buying and selling of petrol, and the contract had nothing to say to the question of storage. They would not have gone into the thing at all unless White assured them that he had the storage at Manchester, and that he was in a position to sell petrol if the group would put up the necessary finance.

Mr. Lind at a meeting of the group stated what White had told him regarding the three bills? Yes; on the 12th August Mr. Lind made a statement that White went out to him and told him that he required three of the bills for the purpose of paying for storage, and that he had the sanction of the group to get these bills as commission in lieu of profits. Lind said that he believed White, and accordingly filled the bills up, got them stamped, and gave them to White.

Mr. Lupton—On the mere statement of White he made them a negotiable instrument? Yes.

At the time you went to Stephenson's office had not White an option for a site at Ellesmere Port available for storage? Yes, so I understood. As far as I know it is still available.

At the close of the cross-examination of this witness the Court adjourned till Wednesday.

HOME MISSIONS WORK.

STEADY PROGRESS REPORTED.

Presiding yesterday evening at the annual meeting of the Armagh Diocesan Branch of the Home Missionary Society, the Primate, Dr. D'Arcy, said that it was a wonderful thing that throughout the years of the war, when such tremendous demands were made on every side and sacrifices increased, missionary work did not suffer. In these very difficult times, because they had just come through times which were, in some respects, even more difficult than during the period of the war, it was a wonderful thing that, instead of interest declining in missionary collections, they had to report steady progress. Although the world was in an extraordinary state of confusion and uncertainty, there was a distinct tendency towards the triumph of the principles of Christianity.

Rev. Dr. McKenzie, speaking about missionary work in China, said that although, at present, China was in a sad way politically, yet, from the spiritual standpoint, that country was never more open to the teaching of Christianity.

Mrs. D'Arcy said that they were living in terrible times in Ireland, and they were often astonished at the extraordinary pugnacity of the Irish people, because they were constantly fighting. It had been explained that the fighting instinct of the Irish people was their hatred of monotony, and that they, therefore, welcomed feuds, rebellions, and revolutions. They in the Christian world had a great cause to fight for, and their lives should not be monotonous when they had such a glorious cause as Christianity to advocate.

India at the Cross-Roads.

The Government of India's attempts to placate sedition have failed and it is confronted now with a very alarming state of affairs. While unrest prevails throughout the whole country, Southern India is in a mood bordering upon revolt against the British Raj. These conditions are the work of two movements—the Khalifate conspiracy and the campaign of non-co-operation. The former, now deeply rooted in the Near and Middle East, was at the bottom of the Moplah rising, which remains only half-suppressed. The non-co-operation movement, organised and led by Mr. Gandhi, has been based hitherto on a policy of what may be called aggressive inaction. By a process of simply ignoring British authority, refusing to obey its orders, and boycotting British imports, India is to abolish all foreign influence and to become "free" without the striking of a blow. The Government has given an immense licence to Gandhi—who is revered as a Mahatma—with the result that British life has ceased to be safe in many parts of India, and British prestige has fallen to the lowest ebb. Officials are defied with impunity. Englishwomen cannot walk abroad without fear of insult. The Indian Civil Service sees the magnificent achievement of many generations—honest and ordered government, discipline, law—crumbling to pieces before its eyes. These facts are not realised by people at home, who continue to read with ignorant optimism smooth reports of the progress of "legislative reform." Among the British in India, however, a very different spirit exists. They liken the present conditions to those which obtained before the outbreak of the Mutiny.

Now a definite crisis has been reached. The recent arrest of the Ali brothers on charges of sedition has brought Gandhi into the open. The Government, as we have said, has treated him with the utmost forbearance. The Viceroy, indeed, invited him to a conference and made a vain effort to come to terms with him. As happens commonly in Oriental countries, Gandhi seems to have regarded this patience as a proof of fear and weakness. His latest move is an act of flagrant treason—a public and deliberate attempt to seduce the native troops from their allegiance to the Crown. With forty-seven other non-co-operation leaders, including "an American named Stokes," he has published a manifesto which declares that no Indian can serve the Crown without loss of dignity. It adds: "We are of the opinion that it is the duty of every Indian, soldier and civilian, to sever his connection with the Government and to find other means of livelihood." In a further communication to Young India Gandhi virtually invites the Government to arrest him. "Evidently," he says, "the Governor of Bombay does not know that the National Congress began to tamper with the loyalty of the Sepoy in September of last year, that the Central Khalifate Committee began it earlier, and that I began it earlier still. . . We must spread disaffection openly and systematically till it pleases the Government to arrest us." That is a challenge which can be shirked only at a clearly defined and deadly cost.

The Government of India can do either of two things. It can accept Gandhi's challenge and put him and his associates on their trial for treason, or it can continue to give them a free hand. The immediate results of the former course might be serious. The arrest and trial of the holy man might provoke disturbances on a large scale which might demand repression on a large scale. The ultimate results of the latter course must be not merely serious, but fatal. If the Government chooses to watch idly until India has been made an impossible place for British soldier and civilian, until all the sanctions of law have perished, and until the native Army, riddled with disaffection, becomes a broken reed, it will have committed a double crime against human progress. It will have shattered the prestige of the British Empire in half the world and it will have abandoned India, with her 300,000,000 inhabitants to a hideous fate. Gandhi talks of his "national" movement and pretends that to-day, at last, Hindu and Moslem are working together for the redemption of India. The delusion would not survive Britain's abandonment of India by twenty-four hours. It is the British Raj alone that has kept the fierce Moslem's hand from the throat and pocket of the timid Hindu since the days of Clive. At this moment—as Gandhi does not tell his followers—the Moplahs are forcing Hindus either to accept Islam or to dig their own graves. India is not a nation. She is a huge congeries of more or less dissociable peoples, and the departure of the last British soldier would plunge half a continent into chaos. For its own sake, for India's sake, and for the world's sake, the British Empire dare not connive at this crime against civilisation. What, then, are the Government of India's plans?

Dublin's Food.

We print to-day a survey of food prices in Dublin which should serve as a useful guide to the housewife in her endeavour to evade the "profiteer." That Dublin is one of the dearest cities in the British Isles is only too obvious, but even here prices are beginning to fall. During the past week there has been an appreciable change for the better. This commodity has fallen by a few pennies in the pound, that by a few halfpence, with the result that the thrifty housekeeper has been able to save a couple of shillings in her total outlay. The people of Dublin will be grateful even for this small mercy; but prices are still far from satisfactory and further reductions must be made before the retailers as a body can be acquitted of the charge of "profiteering." Of course, to say that they all are "profiteers" is utter nonsense. Traders, like every other member of the community, are staggering under a load of taxation, and their labour and over-head charges have been rising steadily for the last seven years. Give a dog a bad name and hang him, says the proverb, and there is no doubt that much of the acrimonious criticism that is being directed against the Dublin traders is foolish and misinformed. Nevertheless, there is a discrepancy between wholesale and retail prices in some necessaries which no amount of special pleading can justify. Take the case of meat. There has been a very heavy fall during the past week in the prices of cattle, sheep, and pigs in the markets; yet steaks and mutton have been reduced by twopence per pound at the most, while lamb and bacon have fallen only by a penny. Then take potatoes. They form the staple diet of the poorer classes, and the interests of the community demand that they shall be sold at the lowest possible rate of profit. Yesterday they were bought in the Dublin market for 8s. 2d. per hundredweight and were sold at 1s. 3d. per stone. The retail price of a hundredweight, therefore, was 10s., of which 1s. 10d., or 16⅔ per cent., represented the trader's profit. A much lower rate would suffice. Other foodstuffs also are far too dear. The countryside is swarming with rabbits; yet they are being sold in Dublin at from 1s. 8d. to 1s. 10d. apiece. Chickens cost 1s. 10d. a pound, and fish prices could and should be lowered without much loss to the fishmongers. Some kinds of fruit have fallen considerably. Bananas, for instance, are sixpence cheaper in the pound than they were a week ago, and apples, while anything but cheap, are not so dear as they were last Saturday. Pears, however, cost from sixpence to a shilling apiece—a price which is beyond the reach of nine out of every ten ordinary folk. Despite such anomalies, the downward movement has begun, and under the pressure of intelligent, as opposed to merely noisy, public opinion we may hope that it will continue.

Radium and Cancer.

Radium remains one of the half-explored romances of modern science. Valuable discoveries have been made during the last twenty years, but much has yet to be done before the full range of its usefulness is revealed. Of late it has been advertised as a certain cure for cancer, but the highest authorities agree that the claim is unsubstantial. Sir Thomas Parkinson said recently that the use of radium had proved not only ineffective in the treatment of malignant diseases, but positively dangerous, as its burning quality aggravated the maladies. His opinion is entitled to respect, but it is not shared by a majority of the authorities. Professor W. S. Lazarus-Barlow, for instance, believes that the surgeon's knife is being displaced by radium as "a definitely remedial agent" for cancer, and he declares that one variety of the disease—hitherto regarded as incurable—has yielded to radiation. Professor Alexis Thomson, of Edinburgh University, is more cautious in expressing his views. In a lecture on Wednesday he claimed that radium could not take the place of the knife, but that its introduction into a wound after an operation had resulted in many cures. Unfortunately, experiments with radium have been restricted because it is both scarce and dear. Over a ton of pitchblende is needed to yield a fraction of a gramme. Now, however, Britain is in a position to secure comparatively large supplies. The Imperial and Foreign Corporation has rented the output of the Czecho-Slovakian pitchblende mines for fifteen years.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
Friday Night.

The final plans for the Irish Conference were discussed at the Cabinet meeting to-day, and all arrangements may now be considered as settled. In official circles it is thought that the most critical stage of the proceedings will be reached almost as soon as the Conference meets after the Prime Minister has welcomed the delegates and opened the proceedings. Whether the Prime Minister or Mr. Griffith will raise the constitutional issue upon which nearly everything depends remains to be seen, but the general impression is that it is one that cannot be delayed. It is becoming evident that tact and patience will be largely needed if the Conference is to settle down into a success.

The Sinn Fein delegates will have a great reception on their arrival in London to-morrow, for they will be met at Euston by nearly all the heads of the Irish organisations professing sympathy with Sinn Fein, while the members are asked to line the streets. During their stay in London the Irish delegates are to reside in two private houses in the South-West district and of easy access from Westminster. The Conference will first of all meet in Downing street, but after a time the sittings may be transferred to another place, possibly the Irish Office in Old Queen street, if sufficient accommodation can be provided there.

POST OFFICE TRANSFERS.

Irish officials at the London Post Office, the Evening News hears, are being informed that the Postmaster-General is prepared to consider applications for transfers to the Dublin Post Office to replace English officials anxious to return to London. As, however, the position of Irish Post Office employés under a change of Government is somewhat problematical, it is not surprising that there has been no rush of applicants.

The Westminster Gazette remarks to-day that it notes that the Prime Minister is said to have received "several of his Ministers" on his return to Downing street. The Prime Minister—any Prime Minister in the Parliament and Government of Great Britain—is but primus inter pares. The Ministers are "Ministers of the Crown." This matter deserves attention, for lately Sir J. Craig, the Ulster Prime Minister, has been made to speak of "his Ministers." A Prime Minister is necessarily, if worthy of his place, of much personal influence and authority, but he is not constitutionally, like the President of the United States, the sole depositary of administrative authority. He is not a despot, but a constitutional Minister, co-operating with his colleagues who are directly servants of the Crown.

It is now regarded as certain that the Prime Minister will not go to Washington for the Disarmament Conference—at any rate for the opening, though he may be able to put in an appearance later on. There is a strong feeling that he should certainly make an effort to attend the Conference if public business permits, for the issues are so great and important that it is desirable that this country should be represented by the best possible men. Mr. Balfour has not yet decided whether he will go, nor has Mr. Bonar Law.

£15,000,000 GRANT.

It is probable that the Government will have to ask the House of Commons for a grant at least of £15,000,000 when it places its proposals before the members for the immediate relief of unemployment, and it will certainly not incur any expenditure which is not sanctioned by Parliament in this connection, owing to the great demand for economy. The most important, and probably the most interesting, of the proposals to be placed before the House will deal with stimulation of trade, particularly with the overseas Dominions. Exchange difficulties will not interfere with this plan, except that Germany will be able to undersell all Great Britain on account of the weakness of the mark.

Mr. Asquith is to address a great Liberal demonstration in Glasgow on November 8th, and St. Andrew's Hall, the largest in the city, has been secured for the occasion. This is the first big political meeting held by Mr. Asquith in Glasgow for many years, and the Liberal leader intends to lead an attack on the Coalition. He is to be supported by many leading Liberal politicians, and everything possible is to be done to make the occasion an impressive one. Lady Bonham Carter is to take a prominent part.

TWO MINUTES' SILENCE.

The Cabinet has decided that there shall be a public celebration in London on Armistice Day, and the members of the Government will take part in proceedings at the Cenotaph, where the two minutes' silence will be observed, as in the past two years. The Archbishops of Canterbury and York have drawn up a form of Service to be generally used in churches on the Sunday preceding the Armistice celebration.

It is rumoured that some of the leaders in the trade union movement are seriously thinking of following up the action recently taken by Mr. Havelock Wilson and of attacking the extremists who are trying to the utmost of their power to destroy the sane Labour movement in this country. It is now clearly recognised that the wild men, who care for nothing but destruction, are as great a menace to the Labour Party as they are to any other constitutional body, and, should a Labour Government come into power, it would be subjected to attack and abuse just as much as the present Government. These extremists know that they can do little to advance their wild plans unless they overcome the constitutional authority of the acknowledged leaders of the Labour world, and consequently these leaders are to be attacked whenever it is possible. If Labour is wise, it will get its blow in first, and see that the extremists are driven out of the bodies which they are trying to subvert.

HELPING THE FARMER.

Agricultural experts say that the continued sunshine of the summer has meant millions of pounds to the British farmer. It has given him an opportunity of clearing from the fields the weeds and other rubbish that had accumulated during the war, when labour was too valuable to be used in cleaning up. Owing to the unusually early harvest it has been possible to harrow the fields, clear out the weeds, burn them, and thus manure the ground.

Mr. J. B. Fagan has decided to produce at the Court Theatre on the evening of October 18th Mr. G. Bernard Shaw's new play, "Heartbreak House," which the author describes as a fantasia on English themes after Tchekov. In the third act the audience will be treated to the explosion of a Zeppelin bomb.

The great fight between Dick Smith and Marcel Nilles, which was to have taken place at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, to-night, was postponed. The advance booking did not justify the promoters in carrying out their programme, and they decided that, rather than proceed with the prospect of a heavy loss, it would be better to postpone the fight for a time. The spell of hot weather has had much to do with the decision, for people are not anxious to take part in such displays while the heat is so great.

LAST TO RETURN.

All the military details of the administrative, technical, and departmental staff, employed in France and Flanders, under the Directorate of Graves Registration and Inquiries, have now returned to England, with the exception of a few officers and soldier clerks, whose special duties will not terminate till the close of the present month.

TUESDAY'S FATEFUL CONFERENCE.

IRISH DELEGATES LEAVE TO-DAY FOR LONDON.

APPOINTMENT OF BRITISH REPRESENTATIVES.

SIR GORDON HEWART AS EXPERT ADVISER.

The Cabinet, at its meeting in London yesterday, appointed representatives to confer with the Sinn Fein leaders on Tuesday morning, and completed its arrangements for the conference.

When the constitutional issue has been raised by one side or the other a most critical stage will have been reached. In official circles the belief prevails that this will occur almost immediately after the conference has met.

The Irish delegation will leave Dublin this morning, and is expected to reach London shortly after 5 o'clock. Preparations have been made by Irish organisations in London to give it a reception.

The conference will be opened at 10 Downing street at 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning, but it is possible that the subsequent meetings will be held in the Irish Office in Old Queen street.

CABINET'S NOMINEES.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO ASSIST.

The Prime Minister presided at a further meeting of the Cabinet, held at 10 Downing street yesterday. The Council lasted for two hours, and was concerned chiefly with the Irish and Washington Conferences.

One of the first matters for decision was the appointment of the Government's representatives to confer with the Sinn Fein leaders, and the selection was officially announced yesterday evening as follows:—

The Prime Minister, Mr. Chamberlain, the Lord Chancellor, Mr. Churchill, Sir L. Worthington-Evans, and Sir Hamar Greenwood, with Sir Gordon Hewart, the Attorney-General, to be called in in the capacity of a member of the Conference when constitutional questions are involved.

The first meeting of the Conference will be held at 10 Downing street on Tuesday. The time, which has not yet been definitely fixed, will probably be 11.30 a.m.

AUXILIARY POLICE.

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant reviewed detachments of some of the Dublin companies of the Auxiliary Division of the R.I.C. in the Phoenix Park yesterday.

After the review, His Excellency presented to certain officers and men, numbering about one hundred, the Constabulary Medal awarded for gallantry and devotion during the recent fighting.

THE INTERNMENT CAMPS.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Irish Dominion League held on the 6th inst. the following resolution was adopted:—"That this meeting of the Executive Committee of the Irish Dominion League strongly urges upon the Government the desirability, if only in the interests of peace, of releasing forthwith all prisoners and other persons who have been interned without trial and, in many cases, without any charge having been preferred against them."

The Limerick Corporation, at their meeting last night, adopted a resolution favouring the release of the political prisoners and men in internment camps, as their detention was not conducive to the promotion of peace.

A number of political prisoners who were detained at the military quarters at Carrick-on-Shannon were removed by rail yesterday morning, under escort, to an unknown destination.

IRISH DELEGATION

LEAVES DUBLIN TO-DAY.

The Conference is naturally looked forward to with profound interest, and, while hopes for a successful issue are entertained, it is fully realised that the difficulties in the way are great.

At the Dublin Mansion House yesterday there was great activity, and a meeting of leaders took place. Mr. de Valera, who will not go to London, for the present at all events, had conversations with the delegates.

The delegation consists of Mr. Arthur Griffith, Mr. R. Barton, Mr. Michael Collins, Mr. E. J. Duggan, and Mr. G. Gavan Duffy. With them will travel their secretaries, Mr. Erskine Childers and Mr. Finian Lynch; the chief of the Publicity Department, Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald; three or four typists and others, the party numbering altogether about twenty.

They will leave Westland Row this morning for Kingstown by the boat train at about 8.25. A special saloon carriage will be attached to the train for their convenience. At Holyhead similar accommodation will be provided on the train for London.

Some idea of the uncertainty which prevails may be gleaned from the observation of one of the party who, when saying good-bye to some friends last night, remarked that they might be back before the end of next week. If, however, the conference gets to business with any prospect of a successful outcome the general idea is that the deputation will be absent for several weeks.

Up to the present there is no talk of representation for the Southern Unionists at the conference, but it is regarded as highly probable that their views will be heard. The original intention that Sir James Craig, the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, should take part in the conference appears to have been dropped, but it is thought probable that he, too, will be called in at a later stage.

LONDON RECEPTION.

WELCOMING THE SINN FEIN DELEGATES.

According to a statement issued by the Irish Self-Determination League in London last night, the delegates are expected to arrive at Euston Station about 5.50 p.m. this afternoon. The London District Standing Committee of the League have made arrangements for their reception at the station. The Committees of the Gaelic League, Sinn Fein, Cumann, the Standing Committee of the Executive Council, and the London District Committee of the Self-Determination League, and the Gaelic Athletic Association will constitute a Reception Committee, who will welcome the Delegation, and convey to them the good wishes and confidence of the Gaels of London and Provinces.

The line of route will be as follows:—Euston square, Woburn place, Southampton row, Oxford street, Shaftesbury avenue, Trafalgar square, Whitehall, Victoria street, and thence to the headquartres which have been prepared for them.

TRUCE AND PRIVATE PROPERTY.

Harristown House, in Co. Kildare, the residence of the late Mr. Percy La Touche, was entered some time ago by a detachment of the Irish Republican Army, apparently for the purpose of drilling. The house is at present unoccupied except by a caretaker.

The action of the I.R.A. was reported to the liaison officers, and we understand that, when representations were made that the terms of the truce forbade interference with private property, the detachment left the premises, having been in occupation for a few days.

During the absence in London of Commandant E. J. Duggan, Chief Liaison Officer for Ireland, Commandant Fintan Murphy will act as his deputy. All communications should be addressed:—"Chief Liaison Officer, Gresham Hotel, Dublin."

HEAT WAVE AND HEALTH.

DUBLIN'S CLEAN BILL.

The present spell of abnormal weather is having its effect on health. Colds in the head and headaches are common, and they are generally accompanied by a tired, depressed feeling, which makes the day seem very long. The ordinary business man, wearied after a busy day, was never more glad to get home and rest his limbs.

In England, where the heat is more intense than here, doctors report several cases of a form of food poisoning, the symptoms of which are a troublesome throat, a pain in the stomach, and a temperature of between 100 and 101, lasting for four or five days. It is stated to leave the patient very feeble, and is attributed to the abnormal weather.

In Dublin, however, the health of the citizens has not been seriously impaired, and no common complaint due to the heat wave has been reported to the Public Health Department.

An inquiry at the Department yesterday disclosed the fact that the general health of Dublin was never better. The death rate amongst children has, in fact, been seldom lower. Only eight cases of death from diarrhœa and enteritis were reported last week, whereas during the same week in September they amounted to 40.

The heat wave may have a temporary effect on one's daily physical feeling, but it is some consolation to know that it is in no way serious.

Floods, following a thunderstorm, have caused great damage at Lochaber, Scotland, some residents having narrow escapes.

CORK MURDER VERDICT.

A MYSTERIOUS CYCLIST.

A verdict of murder by some person unknown was returned yesterday at the inquest, at Blarney, Co. Cork, on Maurice Christopher Aherne, 24, who was shot dead on Wednesday night while returning to Monard, Whitechurch, from Cork.

All arrangements for the inquest were in the hands of I.R.A. police, who were represented at the inquest by a brigade officer.

Daniel J. Healy, accountant, in reply to the brigade officer, said that the man who shot Aherne spoke, it seemed, in an ordinary Southern accent. Robbery was unquestionably the motive.

After the shot was fired witness ran down the road for about a quarter of a mile, and met James Mullane, a boy. While he was telling Mullane about the occurrence he saw a cyclist passing. The man riding the bicycle had come from the direction of the shooting. He appeared to witness to be the same man as the man who had "held them up." At the time the cyclist passed quickly. In fact "shot past" like a flash.

The Coroner said that it was quite clear that Aherne was murdered by some person at present unknown. They could only hope that this unknown person would be brought to justice.

JOHN MARTIN.

In reference to the special article on Parnell which appeared in the Irish Times of Wednesday, a correspondent corrects the suggestion that John Martin was a Fenian. He points out that after Martin's release from Van Diemen's Land, whither he had been transported in 1848 with John Mitchel, he engaged in constitutional agitation, and the Fenians were his greatest opponents. He was a steadfast opponent of Fenianism, adds our correspondent, and entered Parliament as a Home Ruler.

There was a heavy thunderstorm in north-east Yorkshire early yesterday morning, accompanied by a torrential downpour of rain.

Robert Dixon and William Henderson (16) were drowned while bathing at Sunderland on Thursday night.

'PLANE'S BOMB EXPLODES.

PILOT AND MECHANIC KILLED.

BASRA, Wednesday.

A remarkable flying accident is reported from Nasiriyah, resulting in the death of Flying Officer Maitland Hyslop and Second Air Craftsman Plummer.

Mr. Hyslop's aeroplane, which was carrying bombs, attained a height of 40 feet when one of the bombs exploded. The machine immediately burst into flames, and crashed, killing both men instantaneously.

Three minutes later the second bomb-carrying aeroplane rose from the same aerodrome, and a bomb exploded at an altitude of a hundred feet, causing a second crash. Flying Officer B. E. Herbert escaped with a severe concussion and other injuries, while his mechanic got a black eye.

I am informed that the second explosion was not caused by the first. An exhaustive inquiry is now in progress.—(Press Association Special Correspondent.)

ARMED RAIDERS IN BELFAST.

A PUBLICAN SHOT.

Four raids by armed gangs were carried out in the Northern end of Belfast last night. In all cases the raiders succeeded in escaping arrest, while in three instances they got clear with booty of varying amounts.

The plucky conduct of Mr. Frank Reynolds, a publican, of Lawther street, led to the rout of the men who raided his premises, but Mr. Reynolds paid the penalty by being shot in the head. His injuries, fortunately, are not serious.

Four men called upon him to put up his hands, and, although he is an elderly man, he at once seized a wooden mallet and endeavoured to put the men out. One of the raiders fired a revolver, the bullet entering over the right eye and coming out over the right ear. The men thereupon decamped, and Mr. Reynolds was taken to hospital.

From a monetary point of view, the most successful of the raids was that made on the spirit grocery of Mr. Connolly, Duncairn Gardens. Here Mr. Connolly, his two brothers, and a barman were relieved of £15, a gold watch and chain, valued at £20; a metal watch, valued at 23s.; and the cash register, containing £15. The register was subsequently found by the police in an adjacent street. It was empty.

In the other two cases the raiders succeeded in getting 15s. from an ice-cream vendor, and £3 and a pint of whiskey from a publican.

JUDICIAL APPOINTMENTS.

The King has approved of the following appointments:—

Hon. Mr. Justice Moore and James Andrews, Esq., K.C., to be Lords Justices of Appeal in the Supreme Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland.

Daniel Martin Wilson, Esq., K.C., Recorder of Belfast, to be a Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland.

THE HERMIONE LECTURES.

The annual course of lectures on art will be given at Alexandra College, Dublin, on the afternoons of October 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th, at 4 o'clock, by Mr. A. M. Hind, O.B.E., of the Department of Prints and Drawings in the British Museum.

The first lecture will treat of Rembrandt's etchings and drawings in his earlier period, and at this lecture the chair will be taken by the Provost of Trinity College.

AIR COUNCIL AND R 38.

SYSTEM OF TESTING CRITICISED.

The report of the Court of Inquiry appointed by the Air Council into the disaster to the airship R 38 attributed the accident to the breaking into two parts, due to failure of the structure in the rear of the after-engine cars.

The airship was at the time carrying out rudder and elevator tests at a speed of 45 or 50 knots. An almost extreme helm, with a quick reversal, was being used, which brought a heavy force on the after portion of the hull, due to the swing of the stern.

The airship was designed in the Admiralty Airship Department to meet requirements which appeared to the Court to be greatly in advance of those of previous British airships, and, in view of this, they considered that the design should have been examined and discussed by an official and competent committee before the actual construction was commenced.

The Court expressed the opinion that, in introducing new features, there was in some cases a lack of vital aerodynamical information as to the effect of certain notifications on the strength of the structure, and characterises as unsound the system prevailing at the Royal Airship Works, Cardington, where the vessel was built, by which both the construction of the ship and the inspection of the work are centred in one head.

The Air Council considers that judgment on the latter point should be suspended until the conclusion of the investigations by the Aeronautical Research Committee; while the Admiralty announces that it will publish in due course the result of the investigation it is conducting into the whole matter up to the date when its responsibility was transferred to the Air Ministry.

EUROPE'S CREDITOR.

PROPOSAL TO FUND U.S. FOREIGN LOANS.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

The question of the repayment to the United States of debts incurred by the Allies figures prominently in many papers, and interest in the matter increases as the Washington Conference draws near.

Speaking before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, strongly urged that early action should be taken by Congress on the proposal of the Administration to give the Secretary of the Treasury broad authority for dealing with the funding of the foreign debt, which amounted to nearly ten billion dollars.

Mr. Mellon was of opinion that it was necessary that the Secretary of the Treasury should have the fullest authority to conduct negotiations without being obliged to refer every step to Congress.

"Loans," said Mr. Mellon, "should be funded at the earliest possible moment in order to straighten out the position of the American Treasury. There is authority to accept bonds or currency other than our own in payment of the debts. We must also consider the question of the indebtedness of one Allied nation to another. In other words, we have to work with other creditor nations on a plan of settlement."

OUTSTANDING INTEREST.

Mr. Mellon, in the further course of his statement, expressed the opinion that the Government which owed about nine-tenths of the total debt would, in another year, be in a condition to meet its interest payments, and, he added, there had been no suggestion by any foreign Government for any calculation of debt since 1919, while no interest had been collected.

He urged the necessity of entering into negotiations with Great Britain and the other Powers concerned as soon as the Secretary of the Treasury was vested with the necessary authority.

Asked by a member of the Committee whether he expected to collect anything from Russia, Mr. Mellon admitted that the situation seemed rather hopeless, but that the present conditions were better in Czecho-Slovakia.

Opposition to the proposals of Mr. Mellon developed, several members criticising the idea of placing such vast power in the hands of one man.

Mr. Frear asked if there was any intention that the Disarmament Conference should discuss the question of foreign war debts, and Mr. Mellon replied that he was not aware of any such intention, but he did not think that it would be wise to defer the passing of funding legislation until after the Conference.

BERTHAGE AT THE PORT OF DUBLIN.

INVESTIGATION REFERRED TO DAIL EIREANN.

Dublin Port and Docks Board assembled specially yesterday for the purpose of investigating the following charges made by Mr. W. Paul, a member of the Board:—

"1.—That the Dublin and Lancashire Shipping Company, as owners of the ss. Brussels, have been prevented from receiving suitable deep-water berthage, because of the antagonistic interests of other cross-Channel companies represented on the Board;

"2.—That certain members of the Board are here, not in the interests of the port, but as representatives of cross-Channel shipping;

"3.—That the fact that they are on the Board is prejudicial to competition in cross-Channel shipping, and to direct trading with other countries than Great Britain;

"4.—That the port's interests are invariably made subsidiary to private trading interests."

A week ago the Board, by a majority of 14 to 8 votes rejected a proposal to refer the matter to a tribunal to be nominated by Dail Eireann.

The Chairman (Mr. George Byrne) said that he had had an intimation from Councillor Paul, who has had a family bereavement, that he did not wish that the business should be adjourned that day on account of his absence.

Mr. David Barry said that he, as one of the members directly interested in the charges made by Councillor Paul, had, since the last meeting, given very careful consideration to the subject. Recognising that it would be almost impossible for the Board as a Board, constituted as it was, of twenty-eight members, to sit in judgment upon their own actions with any degree of satisfaction to themselves or to their constituents, he had come to the conclusion that the situation might best be met by referring the investigation of the charges to a tribunal to be appointed by Dail Eireann.

His views had been clearly set forth on two previous occasions. Personally he had nothing to fear and nothing to hide from the most careful and minute investigation into every act of his since he became a member of the Board. He courted the fullest publicity and inquiry regarding the charges made against him and his company, namely, that they had a monopoly of the berthage of the port. There were members of Mr. Paul's party at the Board, and they made no such charge as he had made; and he (Mr. Barry) believed that Mr. Paul would not have made the charges if he had been better acquainted with the working of the Board.

He was perfectly willing to leave the investigation of the charges to any tribunal composed of reasonably-minded Irishmen. He, therefore, proposed that Dail Eireann be asked to set up a tribunal to investigate the charges made by Councillor Paul against the Board.

Mr. Loughlin seconded the proposition, and it was carried unanimously.

RAILWAY DISASTER SEQUEL.

PARIS, Friday.

The number seriously injured in the railway accident at Agen is 12. A railway official has been arrested in connection with the accident.

Two more bodies have been recovered from the wrecked train in the Batignolles tunnel. The identity of fourteen of those who perished in the accident is still unestablished. The signalman has been provisionally arrested on a charge of having shown a signal indicating that the tunnel was clear.—(Reuter.)

LATE MR. J. R. BLOOD.

The funeral of Mr. John Redmond Blood, J.P., of Monkstown, Co. Dublin, took place to Malahide yesterday in the presence of a large number of sympathisers. The coffin was draped with the flag of the Irish Lights, of which he was a Commissioner. The Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by Rev. W. L. McCormick, officiated.

The chief mourners were:—Alexander F. Blood, K.C.; Adam Lloyd-Blood, and George L. Blood (brothers), John T. Rennie and George Tisdall, J.P. (brothers-in-law); and Charles R. Armstrong and Bindon Blood (nephews).

LORD BANDON'S CAPTIVITY.

STORY TOLD IN COURT.

£121,000 FOR LOSS OF CASTLE BERNARD.

The sufferings endured by Lord Bandon during the three weeks when he was held in captivity after the destruction of his home, Castle Bernard, in June last were described at the Bandon Quarter Sessions yesterday.

Lord Bandon claimed £2,000 compensation for personal injuries, and Judge Hynes awarded him the sum of £1,500.

Lord and Lady Bandon also made claims for compensation in connection with the burning of Castle Bernard, and the following awards were made:—

Destruction of Castle Bernard	£61,905
Loss of furniture, paintings, etc.	£45,691
Lady Bandon's losses	£14,072

A PHYSICAL WRECK.

DOCTOR'S OPINION.

Lord Bandon, in reply to Mr. Conner, K.C. (who was instructed by Mr. Sherlock), said that he was taken from his home, and was removed from house to house every second night. Sometimes he had to walk three or four miles, and he was put into a car, and the jolting made him very sore. He was away for three weeks, and in one day he lost a stone in weight. Ever since he had returned he was under medical treatment.

His Honor—Were you well treated?

Lord Bandon—I cannot say that I was, but in some cases I was better treated than in others. I was not able to go to bed at all. The people were kind as far as they were allowed. I was in good health before this occurred. I am 71 years of age.

Dr. J. J. Welply, Bandon, stated that he knew Lord Bandon for 40 years, and he had always been in good health. He attended him about three weeks before the 21st June. Lord Bandon suffered occasionally from gout. He had no nerve disease, but was rather nervous. On his return to Castle Bernard on 12th July he suffered from an attack of bronchitis, and he was removed to Cork, where he saw him and attended him. He had a slight attack of bronchitis with influenza twelve months before, but it passed away.

His nerves were now bad, and he was quite weak in the legs. He had an abrasion on each hip into the bone, which were due to his being driven in a narrow cart. These abrasions took four weeks to heal. He was able to go out on the 22nd July. The effect of all this was that he was a broken down man and a wreck compared to what he was before. In his opinion, Lord Bandon would never be the same man again.

His Honor—How long do you know him?

Dr. Welply—For the last forty years.

You never played cricket with him? No; but I saw him play.

His Honor—Well, I played with him many times, and he was great at hockey, too.

His Honor said that Lord Bandon held the highest office in the county, and it was an indignity to that office to treat him as he had been treated. He was now a physical wreck, according to the medical evidence. £1,500 was awarded.

DESTROYED BY ARMED FORCE.

CASTLE BERNARD MAY BE REBUILT.

The claim of £100,000 for the malicious destruction by fire of Castle Bernard on June 21 was made in the names of Lord Bandon, Percy Ronald Gardner Bernard, Arthur W. Sandford, and Hugh French.

Mr. H. D. Conner, K.C., who, with Mr. J. F. Bourke (instructed by Messrs. Clifford Lloyd), said that Lord Bandon was tenant for life under a settlement of 19th June, 1876, and Doctor Sandford and Mr. French were trustees of the estate for Percy Ronald Gardner Bernard, a minor. Castle Bernard was well known to most of them as a magnificent mansion, built at different times, but the modern portion of it was constructed in the very best style about 120 years ago. The best artists were employed. There were very fine mantelpieces by distinguished artists, and the whole woodwork decoration was of such excellent workmanship and material that it could scarcely be done now. Mr. Hill, the architect, had made a careful estimate of what it would cost to rebuild and restore it, so far as it was possible of course.

This was a case where the Castle would be rebuilt if the circumstances permitted; that was if the money was forthcoming and the state of the country permitted. Mr. Hill's estimate, if they left out trimmings, was about £65,000, but the walls were peculiarly good, and suffered less from the fire than those of many other structures in this country, and Mr. Hill had allowed £10,000 for the walls, which were intact.

The Countess of Bandon stated that on 21st June the Castle was destroyed by fire by an armed force. The interior decoration of the Castle was of the highest class, by a distinguished artist of the 18th century. An older portion was known as King John's Tower.

Mr. W. H. Hill, F.R.I.A.I., stated that he inspected the ruins of Castle Bernard, and made a detailed estimate of what it would cost to restore it. The work of the castle was of a high-class description. His total estimate was £57,708, exclusive of fees, and, including fees, it was £62,464. The cost of restoring the mansion he estimated at £62,344 4s. 10d. Out of that he deducted £10,000 for undamaged masonry. The length of the castle was 336 feet.

His Honor awarded £61,905, and paid a tribute to Mr. Hill for the excellent plans that he had prepared, and the valuations that he had made.

THE CASTLE'S CONTENTS.

The Earl of Bandon, K.P., and the Countess of Bandon claimed £70,000 for the furniture, china, wines wardrobes, paintings, etc.

Mr. Conner, K.C., said that the total value of these articles which had belonged to Lord Bandon was £44,500, and Lady Bandon's portion, which included furniture, china, jewellery, and very valuable old lace, was £14,000. There was no detailed inventory showing what were the contents of the mansion. Lord and Lady Bandon lived for many years in the castle, and their confidential servant, who was intimate with every room, had made out a list of the contents of every room. Lady Bandon herself was a very good judge of the value of china, and knew almost all the articles of china in the mansion. It would be impossible for anybody to estimate the price of china which was very rare without seeing it. Nearly all of the china was collected by the Earl who added the new wing in the eighteenth century.

Mr. Bennett, Dublin, gave a detailed description of the furniture, paintings, china, etc., in the castle from Lady Bandon's list. His estimate of Lord Bandon's claim was:—Furniture in castle, £18,782 16s.; wardrobe personnel, £732 12s.; oil paintings in gallery, £25,080. His estimate of Lady Bandon's claim was:—Furniture, etc., in castle, £11,172; wardrobe personnel, £2,900 12s. 4d.

His Honor awarded Lord Bandon £45,691 5s. 6d. and Lady Bandon £14,072 12s. 4d. Mr. Bennett was allowed 250 guineas fees and expenses, and M. Murphy 20 guineas fees and expenses.

LORD BANDON'S AGENT.

At the same sessions Mr. George T. Webb, who was shot in the hand in his own house by armed men, and has since left the country, was awarded £4,000.

Mr. Henry R. Poole, J.P., was awarded £10,346 for the burning of Mayfield House, near Bandon.

LOOTING AND BURNING.

At the Tuam Quarter Sessions John McCormack, an ex-Army man, was awarded £135 for the looting of his shop, and Thomas Clancy £2,000 for the burning of his house.

"TUBERCULOSIS CURABLE."

Speaking at the provincial annual conference of the Faculty of Insurance at Portsmouth last night, Colonel Nathan Raw, M.P., said that tuberculosis was never hereditary, and given proper and adequate measures of treatment was curable.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Parliamentary Secretary to the Health Ministry, referring to the review of panel fees and the talk of a medical strike, said no responsible man would desire to imitate methods that had proved so disastrous in other spheres. State medical service might be cheaper, but it would kill initiative.

A dynamite bomb was thrown yesterday at a gunpowder store at Alcobaca, 80 kilometres from Lisbon, destroying it completely. The police are still trying to find the authors.—(Exchange.)

£15,000,000 FOR UNEMPLOYMENT.

LABOUR LEADERS TO MEET PREMIER.

When the Government places its unemployment proposals before the House of Commons it is probable that it will ask for £15,000,000.

Owing to the widespread demand for economy, however, it will not incur any such expenditure unless it has been sanctioned by Parliament.

An important proposal which will be placed before the House relates to the stimulation of trade, especially with the Overseas Dominions.

Mr. Lloyd George has arranged to meet the Labour leaders in London next week to hear their proposals and inform them of the Government's intentions.

LABOUR DISAPPOINTED.

OBJECTION TO FINANCIERS.

The Labour Conference sat in London yesterday to consider Mr. Lloyd George's suggestion that Labour should co-operate with the Government in coping with the unemployed problem.

At the close of the proceedings an official statement was issued showing that a long communication was addressed to the Prime Minister recounting the efforts made by the Labour Party since 1919 in this direction, and adding that the Labour movement had done its utmost to lay down the foundations of a policy on unemployment, and was sincerely anxious that the whole problem should be dealt with promptly.

The letter concluded:—"We have appointed six representatives, whose names are appended, together with our officials, further to explain our proposals, and to hear and examine any proposals made by the Government, but not as members of any joint committee, including financiers and employers, as suggested by you at the interview to explore the problem further, and so cause more delay, nor can our representatives be held responsible for the policy ultimately adopted by the Government. The Conference will be glad to hear when you would wish our representatives to meet you, and is resuming at 2 o'clock to-day to hear your reply."

The letter was signed by Messrs. Bowerman and Henderson, representing the Trades Union Congress and Labour Party respectively.

When the Conference reassembled at 2 o'clock a reply was awaiting it from the Prime Minister's Secretary intimating that Mr. Lloyd George was willing to meet the appointed representatives next week, but regretting that he could not name a definite date until some time on Monday, when the signatories would be informed of the exact time, which would be early in the week.

The Conference then sent a reply to the Prime Minister expressing considerable surprise at the letter, in view of his urgent representations last Wednesday, which had influenced the signatories in convening by telegram yesterday's joint meeting. The letter proceeded:—"The Conference appointed its representatives, and communicated its decision to you without delay, in the belief that you would desire an immediate consultation. Our representatives were appointed on the assumption that you would probably wish to meet them to-day, and the Conference reassembled this afternoon in that belief."

The following were the six representatives appointed to meet the Prime Minister—Mr. R. B. Walker, Mr. E. W. Poulton, and Miss Margaret Bondfield (Trades' Union Congress); Mr. Sidney Webb, Mr. J. Ramsay Macdonald, and Mr. Arthur Henderson (Labour Party).

LABOUR UNREST.

ENGINEERING TRADE CRISIS.

In a statement issued last night intimating their intention to post notices early next week for the withdrawal of the war bonuses in three equal amounts on the 1st November, 1st December, and 1st January, respectively, the Engineering and National Employers' Federations express regret at the failure to secure a joint recommendation from the trade unions on the matter, despite every effort at a settlement, especially when the Government and all concerned are seriously endeavouring to devise means for a reduction in costs, so as to influence a revival in trade and create more employment. The hope is expressed that members of the union when balloting will realise the serious position of the industry at present. Otherwise the only course is to intimate that such work as exists is available to the men at the reduced rate, in the hope that if work can be turned out at a reduced cost the further cancellations of orders may be avoided and purchasers induced to place new work.

WAR BONUS WITHDRAWAL.

A conference of representatives of the shipyard trade unions was held in London yesterday to consider the position arising from the withdrawal of war bonuses on the total earnings of shipyard workers, which it was understood would take effect on Wednesday next, and to endeavour to secure the postponement of the reduction for another month, with the view to securing an extension of the withdrawal over three months, commencing in November.

The conference, which was private, appointed a deputation to wait upon the representatives of the Shipbuilding Employers' Federation.

Upon their return to the conference it was announced that arrangements had been made for a joint conference with the representatives of the employers, to be held on Monday at the North British Hotel, Edinburgh.

RAILWAYMEN IN CONFERENCE.

A special delegate meeting of the National Union of Railwaymen yesterday at Unity House considered a report from the sub-committee appointed at Newcastle at the annual conference on the internal administrative affairs and the general situation of the union.

The agenda had not been completed when the meeting adjourned.

The position with regard to Scottish railways will be considered to-day.

SEAMEN'S NEW UNION.

At Bristol yesterday about three hundred seamen decided unanimously to cease membership of the National Seamen's and Firemen's Union, and appointed officials to set up a new organisation as the Seamen's Branch of the Transport Workers' Federation.

PREMIER AND WASHINGTON

BRITISH DELEGATION NOT YET APPOINTED.

At yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet in London the Washington Conference occupied the attention of Ministers for a considerable time, but no official information was available as to the outcome.

The present position is that Mr. Lloyd George has notified the United States Government of his inability to attend, but this is not necessarily his last word.

America is anxious that he should be present. Considerable influential pressure has been brought to bear to induce the Premier to reconsider his decision, and it is understood that it found strong support within the Cabinet circle yesterday.

MR. BALFOUR'S QUALITIES.

The Morning Post, referring to the probability of Mr. Balfour being chief representative of the British Government at the Washington Conference, says:—He is already known to Americans, and has won their liking and esteem. His immense experience of affairs, his great knowledge, his brilliant intellect, his tact and urbanity alike admirably qualify Mr. Balfour for the momentous task with which he is entrusted at the Conference, which should be called a Conference to remove enmity and causes of distrust among the nations.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

PACIFIC PROBLEM.

A CLASH OF INTERESTS.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

When the proposal was first made to hold a Conference at Washington on the limitation of armaments, with special reference to Pacific problems, hardly any of the Governments or the peoples to whom the appeal was made were aware of the great opportunity offered to them. Partial and short-sighted views were taken. A momentum is being accumulated that will soon, we hope, sweep away all petty misunderstandings and considerations of mere precedence and etiquette. The biggest problems are concentrated in the Pacific. Among the growing populations on the shores of that great ocean there is a clash of interests. We strongly deprecate the suggestion that this clash of interests must inevitably lead to war. It is a great common interest that the Powers are called upon to promote by divesting themselves of every impulse to self-seeking, to petty haggling and bargaining, and by giving of their best thought and their keenest energy in order to find a way of making healthy national aspirations and the rapid development of trade and communications contribute to the fertilising achievement of a world unity, instead of being frittered away in devastating rivalries.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

EXPORT CREDITS SCHEME.

The Times Parliamentary Correspondent says:—The Cabinet has not got much farther with its considerations of the methods of relieving unemployment and reviving industry. To confer a real benefit on trade, the Government will have to do more than enlarge the area of the world to which the export credits scheme applies. The present scheme has not been of much use to exporters. Business men criticise its administration, and desire a radical alteration in the constitution of the Advisory Committee.

It is suggested in official quarters that the Cabinet is not in a position to pursue its consideration of the subject until the Prime Minister has met the representatives of Labour. The explanation is not very convincing, particularly as the Labour Party is only prepared to discuss its own programme, which is not new, but has been before the country in one form or another for many months. It is to be inferred that the Cabinet, as a whole, wants more time to consider the subject, and that the suggestions of the Unemployment Committee are not unchallenged.

THE IRISH CONFERENCE.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S APPOINTMENT.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times, writing on the British representation in the conference with the leaders of Sinn Fein, says:—It is something of a surprise to find that Mr. Chamberlain, as well as the Prime Minister, will be engaged in the negotiations. The arrangement is obviously advantageous in its assurance of the most authoritative representation of the main body of Unionist opinion, but it had been thought scarcely possible that the concurrent sitting of Parliament during several of the early weeks of the conference would permit of both the Prime Minister and the Leader of the House of Commons being engaged in the negotiations.

The procedure of the conference has yet to be determined, and, possibly, a way will be found to permit of Mr. Chamberlain continuing to lead the House in person, and not by deputy. It would appear that the Government front bench will have to be largely occupied by Under Secretaries while the conference is in session.

A FREIGHT WAR.

AMERICAN SHIPOWNERS TAKE ACTION.

The Washington Correspondent of The Times cables:—Though there is every reason to believe that a ruthless freight war has been decreed by American interests in connection with the Egyptian cotton freights controversy, Shipping Board officials here refuse to confirm or deny the fact. Beyond the statement that the American course of action is undoubtedly already known "to those most interested in London and Liverpool," they will make no comment.

I am informed, however, that a cut in freights of 50 per cent. has been, or will soon be, announced by the United American (Harriman) Line and Bull and Company's Line, with the concurrence and support of the Shipping Board, and that rates will be held at this figure until the Liverpool lines conference becomes more compliant. Complementary action is to be taken in other directions, such as bringing pressure or influence to bear on American consignees of Egyptian cotton, to the end that they should agree to refuse to take delivery unless the cotton is brought in American bottoms.

IRISH TRADE BAN.

The Daily Mail says:—It is quite true that Sinn Feiners have laid down their arms, and that hostilities have ceased, but the truce is not yet complete, and does not extend to the ban placed by Sinn Fein upon English trade. For the Conference really to succeed, the view in Ministerial circles is that mutual hostility, as well as hostilities, should cease, and it does not seem unreasonable to ask Irishmen to make the truce a real pact of preliminary peace, and thus pave the way for final and abiding agreement.

It now seems certain that the Government will urge this point of view by way of preface, and having met us so far it is not extravagant to hope that the Irish leaders will accommodate us to this extent.

SPENDING PANIC IN VIENNA.

The Vienna Correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing on Friday, says:—It is not gambling that has driven the crown down this week—yesterday the official closing quotation was 12,400 to the £ (50 a penny)—but sheer panic which has seized every class in Vienna. Everybody is buying sound value with his crowns, fearing that in a few days they will be worthless. There is frantic buying of goods of every description, and many shopkeepers are nearly sold out. Foods like condensed milk are unobtainable. Hosiers will not sell more than two collars to one customer, and police have to protect boot shops and support boot dealers in refusing to sell more than one pair of boots per person.

ALLIED TROOPS IN SILESIA.

The Paris Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing on Friday, says:—A report published here from London giving the impression that some kind of special conference will meet here to-morrow to consider the action to be taken by the British, French, and Italian troops in Upper Silesia, when the decision of the League of Nations on the question is made known, has occasioned some surprise. Except an ordinary meeting of the Ambassadors' Conference, no other meeting has been arranged for to-morrow, and it is at this meeting that the French are expected to bring up the question referred to above.

FAMINE RELIEF INTERESTS.

A British "mystery man," who will direct Britain's proposed famine relief measures in Russia, was referred to last night, says the Daily Mail, by the Rev. F. Kommlosy, the representative in England of the Russian Famine Relief Fund, at a meeting at Hammersmith. The name of the British Commissioner, he said, was a household word to all.

"I may not divulge the secret of his name," proceeded the speaker, "but it will carry such weight with it that the question of guarantees will not be considered any more." That such a man should undertake this work will satisfy every Englishman that all is well.

CLOSING OF ALTHORP HOUSE.

The Northampton Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph states that Earl Spencer, K.G., has closed Althorp House for an indefinite period, as he finds himself so impoverished by high taxation and the increased cost of living that his trustees advise him that it is impossible to maintain the estate under present conditions.

The orchestral items at to-morrow's Mater Concert at La Scala Theatre will include Weber's famous overture, "Oberon," and also a selection from "Eugène O'Négin" (Tschaikowsky). The principal vocalist will be Mr. Robert Radford, the English bass, whose items will include "She alone Charmeth" (Irene), by Gounod, and "In Sheltered Vale" (traditional). Miss Chrissie Owens, who is well-known to Dublin audiences, will also contribute.

FALL IN FOOD PRICES.

STILL ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT.

MERCHANTS' REPLY TO CRITICS.

HUNT FOR CHEAPEST SHOPS.

During the past week there was a fall, generally speaking, in the prices of foodstuffs in Dublin.

The decrease was comparatively slight in respect to any article or commodity; but, applied generally, the housewife finds that the reduction in the week's bill was fairly satisfactory when contrasted with the amount paid in previous weeks.

It is interesting to note that the tendency among shoppers is to seek out the house where the best value is obtainable, and the weekly grocery bill is in consequence being reduced to some extent at any rate.

Merchants keenly resent the charges of "profiteering" being made against them. They contend that the general public have no conception of the greatly increased expenses which have been imposed on them in recent times. The manager of one large firm, in conversation with an Irish Times representative, cited figures, which showed that the expenses—rates, taxes, insurance, and so on—for the past six months had increased by hundreds of pounds over the previous half-year. Every effort, it was stated, was being made to reduce prices, and this could only be done by securing extended business.

The fall in cattle and sheep prices in the markets has had its effect on the prices charged in the butcher's shops, but not to the extent that the public expected. This week there was a drop in the retail trade of a penny per lb. all round, as compared with the previous week.

CHEAPER MEAT.

In regard to prime Irish ox beef, the prices for the best qualities rule as follows:—Sirloins, 1s. 7d. per lb.; ribs, 1s 5d. per lb.; steaks (sirloin, prime cuts), 1s. 8d. per lb. do. round, 1s. 6d. per lb.; do., stewing, 1s. 4d. per lb. In the last three cases there was a reduction of 2d. per lb. on the previous week. Ox tongues were selling at 1s. per lb., a reduction of 2d. Irish lamb also showed an average decrease per lb. of a penny, the present prices being—Fores, 1s. 3d.; hinds, 1s. 5d.; legs, 1s. 6d.; loins, 1s. 5d.

In regard to Irish mutton, the prices range as follows:—Hind quarters, 1s. 5d.; fore quarters (16lbs. to 20lbs.), 1s. 3d.; legs, (9lbs. to 12lbs.), 1s. 5d.; loins (whole, 10lbs. to 14lbs.), 1s. 5d.; loins (half best end, about 6lbs.), 1s. 6d.; chops, 1s. 8d. Other cuts varied from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. In some cases there was a reduction of 2d. per lb.

As to fish and poultry, the prices depend entirely on the supplies in the markets. In regard to the first-named article, this week's and last week's prices did not vary much generally. For particular kinds the price was similar, but there was a reduction of a penny and twopence per lb. for other sorts.

Dried fish especially came down, the reduction for certain kinds being as much as sixpence. The average prices ruling were:—Gurnet (red), 9d. to 3s. each.; halibut, 2s. 4d. per lb.; fresh haddock, 1s. per lb.; plaice, 1s. 6d. per lb.; cod, 1s. per lb.; soles (black) and turbot, 2s. 4d. per lb.; brill, 1s. 8d. per lb.; whiting 10d. per lb.; mackerel, 3d. each; kippers, 10d. per lb.; Finnan haddock, 1s. per lb.; ling, 1s. 2d. per lb.; oysters, 2s. 3d. per doz.; lobsters, 1s. to 3s.; crabs, 4d. to 1s.

POULTRY PRICES.

In the poultry line, chickens were 1s. 10d. per lb., the same as last week; fowls for boiling 1s. 6d., against 1s. 8d.; rabbits, 1s. 6d. to 1s. 10d. each; ducklings, 1s. 10d. per lb.; turkey poults, 2s. 6d. per lb.; Michaelmas geese, 1s. 9d. per lb.

Fruit and vegetables were much cheaper this week. Last week the price for the best quality of potatoes was 1s. 6d. per stone, this week they were down to 1s. 3d. Other and inferior grades, of course, sold at a lower rate. Yesterday's wholesale price in the Dublin markets was 8s. 2d. per cwt.

Apples have come down in price, the supplies being plentiful. Dessert apples are being sold at 2s. per dozen, and last week the prices ranged from 1s. to 3s. Cooking apples last week went at 6d. to 1s. per lb.; now they are from 2½d. to 5½d. per lb. Bananas are reduced by 6d. per lb. to 3s., and black grapes have come down from 3s. 6d.-5s. 6d. per lb. to 2s. 6d.

Pears (home) are now 6d. to 1s. each. Prices for other commodities are:—Tomatoes (home), 11d. per lb.; cabbage, 4d. per head; cauliflowers, 6d. each; celery, 10d. per head; lettuce, 2d. per head; onions, home, 3d. per lb., and Spanish 4d. per lb.; parsley, 2d. per bunch; parsnips, 1s. 3d. per stone; turnips, white, 6d. per dozen, and Swede 8d. per stone.

While the market price of pigs has fallen considerably all over the country, the reduction in the retail price for bacon has not been very marked. The decrease this week as compared with last week only averaged a penny per lb. The prices obtaining per lb. were

	Last week.	This week.
Whole gammon	2s. 6d.	2s. 0d.
Whole fore end	1s. 5d.	1s. 3d.
Half fore end, best part	1s. 5d.	1s. 6d.
do. stock	—	1s. 2d.
Flanks	—	1s. 6d.
Half gammon, best part	—	2s. 4d.
do. shank	—	1s. 10d.

In the fresh pork shops the prices ruling were:—Loin chops, 1s. 11d.; other portions, 1s. 10d.; roast ham, 4s. 6d. per lb.; other portions, 3s. 8d. A month ago the prices respectively were:—2s. 3d., 2s. 2d., 5s., and 4s.

The prices for groceries remain steady, and the quotations for the following lines in most of the principal establishments are:—Sugar (finest qualities), granulated 6½d. per lb., loaf 7½d., Demerara 7d., brown (moist) 6d., castor 7d., icing 8½d.; teas, special blend 1s. 10d., serviceable 2s. 4d., Indian and Ceylon 2s. 6d.

POSITION IN LIMERICK.

NO FALL IN RETAIL PRICES.

A deputation from the Limerick Trades Council attended the meeting of the Limerick Corporation last night, in reference to "profiteering" in the city, with regard to food supplies.

It was stated that there would be trouble unless the "disgraceful practice" was ended. The price of pigs had dropped to one-half of what it was twelve months ago, and yet there was no corresponding fall in the retail prices.

There was an increasing demand for a reduction of wages, while the workers were not able to provide themselves with the necessaries of life owing to the "profiteering" that existed.

It was finally decided to appoint a joint committee of the Trades Council and Corporation to deal with the matter.

WHISKEY SUPPLIES.

AN OVERSTOCKED MARKET.

The Edinburgh Correspondent of the Financial News telegraphs that the Distillers Co., Ltd., the largest combine in the whiskey trade, and holding almost a monopoly in the grain whiskey production of the world, has promptly closed down the Bowness Distillery, which they acquired recently, the explanation of the combine for shutting down being that the whiskey market is overstocked, and they are seeking to curtail supplies.

The closing down of this grain distillery follows the recent closing of a number of malt distilleries, which found the market bare of orders. The causes of the slackness in the whiskey trade are the high cost, the weak quality permitted by the Government, and lack of funds among the working classes. The retailers report that the workingman who formerly drank whiskey has been compelled to give it up owing to the cost, and more beer is consumed. The outlook for the Scotch whiskey trade is unsettled.

PREMIER'S STATE FUNERAL.

SYDNEY, Friday.

Wonderful and touching tributes of love, esteem and respect marked the State funeral of the late Premier of New South Wales, Mr. Storey. The Cathedral congregation included the State Governor, Mr. Storey's Ministerial colleagues, representatives of the Federation, and various State Governments and foreign Consulates.—(Reuter).

MILLION FRANCS FIRE LOSS.

MARSEILLES, Thursday.

A fire has destroyed part of the sugar refinery warehouse. The damage is estimated at over one million francs.—(Reuter.)

THE DAYS OF THE NORMANS.

IRELAND'S FIGHTING MEN.

The formation of regular troops in Ireland was due to the Norman invasion, said Captain Stephen Gwynn in a lecture, which he delivered in Dublin yesterday. The Normans went into the country, where they established themselves in their castles and strongholds.

Against the Castles of Stone the Irish opposed a castle of bone, or, in other words, a permanent body of fighting men, and so there was the formation of regular troops in Ireland.

Coming to later times, Captain Gwynn said that the first man on the Irish side in Irish wars, who was, beyond all doubt, a regular soldier, was Owen Roe O'Neill. He made soldiering in Ireland a different thing from what it had been before.

The lecture was the first of a series, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to Trinity College Mission Settlement in Belfast. It was delivered in the Molesworth Hall, and the Provost of Trinity College presided.

Captain Stephen Gwynn, whose address was entitled "Highways and Byways in Irish History," explained that, in order to avoid politics and controversial matters, he would take the "military road," and talk about Irish soldiers. After passing references to military forces and fighting men of the earlier centuries, he said that when they came to the Norman invasion they had a people from an outside civilisation coming among the Irish who were midway between civilisation and barbarism. They came to Ireland in quite a small body.

THE OPPOSING FORCES.

The special strength of the Normans lay in defensive armour, whereas the modern European expedition owed its strength to the fact that it had quick-firing rifles and machine guns. For forty or fifty years the Normans swept all before them, the Irish being unequipped axe men, and standing in the same relation to the Normans as a tank bears nowadays to a rifle. (Laughter.) The Normans were a permanent force, while the Irish force was a scattered force which had been called together, and could not be relied upon to stay together.

In some ways the Irish managed to meet the superiority of the Normans' equipment, and adapted their tactics to get on terms with them, but the essential thing by which the Normans won was the building of castles—they went into a country and built their strongholds, and sat down there. Against that, the Irish had to oppose something. Against the castle of stone they opposed a castle of bone—that was to say, a permanent body of fighting men, and so there was the formation of regular troops in Ireland. What the Irish did first was to import their men—they brought from Scotland what were called gallowglasses. They had the MacDonnells, and in Donegal the great gallowglass family of the McSweeneys, who were in the employment of the O'Reillys and other Northern clans, and eventually found their way to Cork. They found the McSheehys, another gallowglass family, in the service of Irish Kings.

THE FIRST REGULAR IRISH SOLDIER.

He did not think that they would find any of the wars in Ireland fought on the level of European wars until they came to the 17th century. The first man on the Irish side in Irish wars who was beyond all doubt a regular soldier was Owen Roe O'Neill, and he made the soldier in Ireland a different thing from what he had been before. In the reign of James I. a considerable number of Irishmen were diverted to the Polish Army to fight against the Turks. Later on the idea of common religion in the armies of France and Spain grew up, and they found Irishmen in the service of the Austrian Emperor. There was a considerable raising of troops in Ireland for foreign service with the consent of England, and it was in that way that Owen Roe and others took service with a foreign Power. Owen Roe was a soldier of European reputation before he came to Ireland at all, and he insisted in the first instance that the people whom he commanded should be paid. At that time the Irish troops served under Irish chiefs, but in the Williamite wars the troops were not under Irish command.

It seemed to be a principle under James II. that Irishmen should not be in command. When Sarsfield decided to offer his services to whatever Power cared to employ him he took from 10,000 to 14,000 with him, but that was the beginning of a flood, and the French War Office records showed that in the fifty years before Fontenoy there died of Irishmen in the service of France 450,000. In the 18th century they found the names of Irish Catholic soldiers all over Europe. They left Ireland because they were of a noble class, and felt that they would degrade themselves if they took up a mercantile calling.

IRISH REGIMENTS.

Practically all the Irish regiments in the British Army dated their beginning from the 18th century. When the Irish Parliament became free in 1782 they found a great extension of toleration to the Catholics, and most of the Catholic disabilities were removed in 1793. There was at that time a general willingness of Protestants and Catholics to join together for the purposes of war. In concluding, the lecturer said that he had never taken the view that there was anything in Irish history which any Irishman should not seek to remember and to understand. There were things everywhere that they needed for their guidance—never more so perhaps than to-day. They could picture what was in the minds of the Irishmen who came forward in 1793 and who went out to fight with the common idea of serving Ireland, and they should try and apply what they learned of the highways and byways of Irish history to the present as well as to the past.

The Chairman briefly conveyed the thanks of those present to the lecturer, and the proceedings terminated.

DUBLIN LABOUR DISPUTES.

With attention generally fixed on the railway dispute, the fact that there are other labour troubles in Dublin seems to have been forgotten. There are still in operation two strikes of a protracted kind, but efforts are about to be made to bring them to an amicable ending.

The city is being seriously affected by the continuance of the strike of engineers, which has now lasted over two months. All the engineering shops are involved by the refusal of the men to accept a "cut" of 6s. in their weekly wage. This reduction, it appears, has been accepted in England, but the men here are holding out for separate negotiations. "Self-determination" is their motto, and they seek to have their claims considered apart from those in Great Britain. With a view to adjusting matters a conference is to be held in the Mansion House this morning under the presidency of the Lord Mayor.

The second strike is that of the chemical workers, who have been idle for about a month. Nearly 200 men are involved, and unless a settlement is reached at a conference which will probably be held on Monday, it is feared that the inconvenience caused to the trade will become more serious. A curious feature about this dispute is that it affects the supply of meat to the animals in the Zoological Gardens. One of the firms in the dispute, in addition to carrying on a fertilising factory, has for a number of years been removing condemned meat, blood, and bones from the Corporation Abbatoir at the North Circular road. Portion of this meat was used at the Zoo, but the supply has now been stopped, and in consequence the animals are on short rations.

The Railway Arbitration Tribunal, which is considering the application of the award in regard to standardisation, wages, and hours of Irish railwaymen, has been in daily session for the past week. After sitting for some hours on Thursday the tribunal, over which Mr. Carrigan, K.C., presides, adjourned until Tuesday week.

DUBLIN AND THE PROVINCES.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS

DUBLIN STREET ACCIDENT CLAIM.—For injuring a little girl, who was knocked down in James's street by a motor car, the property of the Freeman's Journal Company, Ltd., that company and the Navy, Army, and Air Force Institute, Dublin, were yesterday each ordered by the Recorder to lodge £25 in court. His Lordship added that later he would decide the case between them. Then it would really be a case against two insurance companies. The evidence was that as the result of a collision between the two motors in James's street the van owned by the Freeman's Journal Company was driven on the footpath, where the child was knocked down.

On and after Tuesday next, a weekly steamer service is to be maintained between Dublin and Cork and Waterford.

Ordinary casual dockers unloaded Government stores from a vessel at the Port of Dublin yesterday. Members of the Crown forces made a cursory examination of goods unloaded from other vessels.

CONNAUGHT.

War memorials have been unveiled and dedicated by the Bishop of Kilmore, Elphin and Ardagh in Calry Parish Church, Sligo, to parishioners who lost their lives on active service in the war. At the Service on Wednesday, a detachment of soldiers, with band, paraded. A collection was made for the funds of St. Dunstan's Hospital for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors.

Major-General H. H. Tudor, C.B., C.M.G., inspected the police at Eglinton street Barrack, Galway, on Thursday. The General travelled by aeroplane to Oranmore and from thence by motor car.

LEINSTER.

FARM SALE INCIDENT.—A remarkable incident occurred at the auction of a North Wexford farm. The property, Ballyfin, Ferns, comprising about a hundred acres, was offered for sale on behalf of the executors of the late Mr. W. J. Tomkins. There was a large attendance, but when the conditions of sale had been read, a man came forward and appealed to the people not to over-bid him, as his grandfather had been evicted from the property 85 years ago. The man then bid £50, and no other offer was made. After a time, a person, said to be a representative of Dail Eireann, spoke to the man who had thus obstructed the sale, and after some conversation the latter made a public confession that he had no claim to the property whatever. The auction then proceeded, and the farm was sold for £1,750.

THE CATTLE PRICES SLUMP.—Only 80 of over 800 head of cattle offered at the Moate October fair were sold. The slump is attributed to the small attendance of buyers and the reduced prices, which the sellers refused to accept. Store cattle prices were down between £5 and £6 a head on last month's quotations, and fat cattle were down to 45s. a hundredweight. A farmer who offered a lot of two and a half years old bullocks which he purchased at £26 a head six months ago was only offered £16, and, like many others, he refused to sell. Fat cattle made on an average 45s. a hundredweight. The sheep fair was somewhat better, though prices showed a downward tendency. Fat sheep made £4 10s. and £5 a head, stores £3 and £3 5s., store lambs £2 5s. and £2 10s.

PRACTICAL ANTI-"PROFITEERING."—In Moate a local anti-"profiteering" committee has been formed of members of the Town Tenants' League, Transport and Postal Unions, and the branch of the National Union of Railwaymen. The committee has toured the town, inspected and compared prices, and recommended shopkeepers to exhibit price lists. As a result of the committee's activities prices have dropped considerably. Notices have been served on the milkmen ordering them to reduce the price from 7d. or 8d. a quart to 5d. If the local tradesmen are not reasonable, the committee will establish a co-operative store and supply commodities at what they consider to be a fair price.

GREYSTONES "FURNISHED HOUSE" DAMAGE.—At Dublin City Sessions yesterday, Rupert Doyle, of Greystones, sued Mrs. Murphy, whose address was given as Dobbyn's Hotel, Tipperary, for £10 for alleged damage to a number of household articles in the plaintiff's house at Greystones, which the defendant rented furnished for eleven months. Mr. Coulter, for the plaintiff, said that when a claim was made for the damage the defendant sent a cheque for 14s. 7d., which was insufficient. Mr. C. Friery, for the defendant, said that the amount offered was quite sufficient to meet the damage, which consisted of a broken jug and a lost key. The Recorder gave a decree for £2.

A setter bitch has presented her master, Mr. P. J. Weymes, Mullingar, with a litter of 21 pups.

A small farm of land, containing 2½ acres, annuity £3, at Camolin, has been sold for £605. On the other hand, the lands of Bloomhill, Wexford, containing 96 acres, have been sold for £1,300.

Tullamore Rural District Council has under consideration the question of appointing a full-time official to act as clerk. At present the duties attaching to the Clerk's department are carried out by a firm of solicitors.

MUNSTER.

CIVIC ECONOMICS.—By a majority of fifteen to eight, Limerick Corporation last night adopted the report of the Retrenchment Committee. Under this report, the night watch is disbanded, six of its members on pension, and seventeen on a retaining fee. Members with under ten years' service are to be paid a retainer only for three years. Pensions paid by the Government are not to exceed £2,000. The weekly wages expenditure in the City Treasurer's office is to be limited to £1,000 a year; in the City Surveyor's office to £900; while the Corporation will dispense with the services of the school attendance officers, subject to advice from the School Attendance Committee.

By a vote of five to four, Youghal Urban Council has decided to exclude representatives of the Press from its meetings in future. Reports will be furnished by the Town Clerk.

ULSTER.

NOT LICENSED AS A MOTOR COACH.—At Bailieborough, Co. Cavan, Petty Sessions on Thursday, Matthew Reilly, Ballinagh, Co. Cavan, was prosecuted at the suit of Captain Hunt, D.I., R.I.C., for using a motor lorry, for which a licence was paid as a commercial vehicle, for the conveyance of passengers. In giving the unanimous decision of the Bench, the Chairman pointed out that the duty on the lorry as a goods conveyance was £21, while the duty as a lorry of the same horse power for carrying passengers was £48. Consequently, the defendant was liable to a fine of three times the difference in the duties—£81. The Bench imposed the nominal fine of £5, and 15s. 10d. costs, this being the first prosecution of the kind in Co. Cavan.

CIRCUIT CHANGES.—It is definitely announced that His Honour Judge Green, who, it is understood, will in future act as County Court Judge for Armagh and Fermanagh, will preside in Dundalk at the Quarter Sessions, which open next week. Judge Green has for several years past been County Court Judge of Louth and Armagh. It is understood that in future Judge Johnston, who at present acts for Monaghan and Fermanagh, will be responsible for Monaghan and Louth.

SUNDAY DRINKING IN DUNDALK.—Several local publicans were fined at Dundalk Petty Sessions yesterday for breaches of the Licensing Act. The Chairman (Mr. Robinson, R.M.) said that the Sunday drinking which went on in Dundalk was a public scandal. Some publicans thought they could do what they liked, but he warned them that in future offenders would have their licences endorsed. "They will either carry out their business according to law," he said, "or we will drive them all out of business."

Farmers in Donegal and Tyrone have agreed that agricultural labourers' wages shall in future be 25s. a week of 60 hours. The weekly half-holiday is to be discontinued.

Strabane No. 2 Council has recently been amalgamated with Stranorlar District Council by an order of the Local Government Board. Dail Eireann, however, has decreed that this order is not to be obeyed.

While motoring near Fintona, Co. Tyrone, the Rev. A. Jenkins, an Enniskillen Presbyterian minister, ran into a trench, four and a half feet wide and five deep, which had been dug across the road. The motorist was not seriously hurt, but the car was badly damaged.

Mr. Charles Watson, Newtownhamilton, for a number of years Assistant Surveyor for County Armagh, who is leaving to take up a teaching appointment in Cork, has been made the recipient of presentations from the parishioners of Newtownhamilton, the present Assistant Surveyor, the roadmen, and the foremen employed under his supervision.

Damage estimated at £200 was done to the ketch William Shepperd, commanded and owned by Captain Chambers, of Kilkeel, which caught fire at Dundalk quays on Thursday night. Flames were noticed coming from the galley, and the military fire brigade, with local quay workers, succeeded in extinguishing them. The ketch had come to Dundalk with slates from Carnarvon, and was awaiting an outward cargo.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE INTERNED.

Letter from Lord Decies.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—No one will dispute the fact that the vast majority of the people in the South and West of Ireland are most anxiously awaiting the result of the Conference between the British Government and the Sinn Fein delegates. They have hopes that this Conference will result in peace and contentment for Ireland. Still, in many peoples' minds there is a constant dread that something may suddenly happen to hinder and, perhaps, upset these negotiations.

There is one cloud on the horizon which should be swept away at once. I allude to the Irish political prisoners interned in various camps in Ireland—men who have been many months interned without trial or any charge made against them. I can see no reason why the Irish Government, having released the leaders, persist in keeping these men as prisoners.

What is happening? At the present moment the Irish Government are spending thousands each month guarding and feeding these prisoners—another charge on the taxpayer—while, on the other hand, entertainments are being organised and subscriptions are invited, which are being liberally subscribed throughout the country, to provide for the wives and families of these prisoners.

I would urge most strongly that this state of affairs should be put an end to, and that the Irish Government should release the interned prisoners at once, so that they may return to their homes to resume their former occupations and support their wives and children.—Yours, etc.,

DECIES.

SINN FEIN AND SOUTHERN LOYALISTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In the quotation which you give from the Irish Bulletin the following passage occurs:—"The majority of the Southern loyalists love their country and are ready to assist a national Government in working for the prosperity of a free Ireland." This statement is perfectly true, so far as it refers to a national Government of Ireland within the Empire. But I am convinced that the great majority of the Southern loyalists would utterly refuse to have hand, act, or part in assisting the Government of an Irish Republic. Southern loyalists, while they love Ireland and desire her prosperity, are animated by a passionate devotion to the Empire. In the great war they freely gave their lives and their sons' lives for the Empire's cause, which they believed to be the cause of true freedom. They refuse to forfeit their British citizenship or to be turned out of the Empire against their will. If an Irish Republic were ever established, they would nearly all, I am sure, elect to continue British and renounce their Irish citizenship.

If, therefore, the leaders of Sinn Fein desire, as they profess, the co-operation of the loyalists, and do not wish to "expatriate any class which goes to make up the Irish nation," let them drop their Republican projects and seek to devise such a scheme as will enable all Irishmen to co-operate in working out the national destiny of the land—in making Ireland the most prosperous and contented part of the British Empire.—Yours, etc.,

"SOUTHERN LOYALIST."

DUBLIN CLUBS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The social and other changes now taking place are having their effects on Dublin clubs, and unless a scheme of amalgamation (in some cases) and of co-operation is mutually agreed to, it can be predicted with some certainty that the financial condition of clubland will continue to get worse and worse. To meet increased costs annual subscriptions have had to be raised, with the result that members who do not absolutely need a club have resigned. What is more serious is that the prospects of recruitment are by no means bright.

When all is said and done the fact remains that there are too many clubs in Dublin. Under pre-war conditions they were able to exist, but times have changed. The difficulties now before them can only be overcome by forming a conseil de famille to consider how, by amalgamation, co-operation, etc., they can improve their condition and at the same time charge prices which will attract their members. Unity and co-operation are as much needed in clubland as in political and other spheres in Ireland.—Yours, etc.,

DUBLIN'S LOCAL TRAINS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter of your correspondent, "Greystones," confirms me in my belief that it is the fixed intention of the railway companies to afford a minimum service to suburban dwellers, though the lot of "Greystones" compared with that of season ticket-holders on the Great Northern Railway line appears to be not altogether unenviable. A train leaves Amiens street each evening at 5.15, which appears to be run exclusively for the benefit of civil servants, for certainly it does not run to suit average business hours. There is not another till 6.45 p.m.

Until this week residents at Portmarnock and Malahide have been cut off from all communication with the city after 9.30 p.m., and now they are supposed to find two late trains in the week—on Thursday and Saturday nights—sufficient for their requirements during the winter months. Surely three late trains a week would constitute a very modest minimum? One running late on either Monday or Tuesday night might be made to serve Skerries, which at present is entirely cut off from the city after 9.30 p.m. Be it noted that the Great Northern Railway can run a late train every night on the Howth line, where they have not got a monopoly.—Yours, etc.,

IRISH CRAFTSMEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your article of last Saturday on the Exhibition of Arts and Crafts the designs for opus sectile were mistakenly attributed to Mr. Clarke. The fine cartoon for the war memorial at Grangegorman, as well as the designs for Stations of the Cross at Spiddal and the mosaic station—in fact, all the mosaic work at the Exhibition—are the work of Miss Ethel Rhind, 24 Upper Pembroke street, Dublin.—Yours, etc.,

BUTCHERS' PRICES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—When is the price of meat to come down in Dublin? A friend of mine, living ten miles from Dublin, sold twenty Cheviot sheep last week in Dublin at 55s. A local butcher took some more at 57s. 6d. My friend kept one of the best of the same lot for his own killing, and weighed the clean carcase before consumption. It weighed just over ninety pounds.

Even if the present price of mutton were 1s. a pound, it would give the butcher a profit of £1 12s. 6d. per sheep, not counting the hide and offal.—Yours, etc.,

DAIL EIREANN COURTS.

AN INNOVATION IN DUBLIN.

Sinn Fein parish courts will be in operation for the first time in Dublin on Tuesday next, summonses at the instance of the Corporation having been issued against traders in the city for offences, as alleged, under the Food and Drugs Act. The number of summonses issued is 120, the prosecutions being for the sales of milk adulterated with water or deficient in fats, adulterated whiskey, etc.

The courts will be opened at 11 a.m., for the North side of the city at 42 North Great George's street and for the South side at 41 York street. The form of summons is only slightly altered from that hitherto in use in the Metropolitan Police District. It is headed, "Saorstat na h'Eireann" (Free State of Ireland), and directs the attendance of the defendant at the "Parish Court of Dublin City, within the jurisdiction" of that court, instead of, as formerly, referring to the Metropolitan Police District. The form is signed by "one of the judges of the said parish court," and not a magistrate for the area.

The summonses have been issued on the certificates of the Corporation's Public Analyst and on reports of the Council's food inspectors. It is understood that the courts will be open to Press representatives, and the date of the opening is the day fixed for the Peace Conference in London.

The Corporation has extended the scope of activities of the sanitary inspectors in its employment, all of them having been appointed as food inspectors, and for the purpose of making them efficient in this branch the three regular inspectors are now daily assisted in their duties by one of the sanitary inspectors.

AUTUMN GARDENING.

An autumn catalogue of bulbs, hardy plants, anemones and plants for sowing at this time of the year has been issued by Messrs. Reamsbottom and Co., Geashill, King's County. It is a well-illustrated handbook, and is also a guide to the methods of planting which are most likely to achieve good results. This firm is specially well known for its "St. Brigid" anemones, for exhibits of which it has been awarded some seventy medals. Auriculas, Canterbury bells, wallflowers, pansies, hollyhocks, and polyanthus are among other products of this firm which give wide satisfaction.

SKERRY'S SCHOOL, 10 Harcourt st., Dublin, provides Specialised Tuition in Shorthand, Typewriting, and Book-keeping, etc. The most up-to-date Commercial School in Ireland. Shorthand Speed Classes to suit all rates. Proficient Students assisted to situations. 662 Certificates in Shorthand, Typewriting, and Book-keeping, and over 155 appointments obtained by Students of the School since January, 1920.—(Advt.)

AMERICAN MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSED STRONG.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Friday.

Stocks opened irregular. There was renewed short selling of Tobaccos and Royal Dutch Petroleum, but the market soon turned strong under buying of a wide assortment of domestic Oils, which quickly showed gains of 1 to 3 on further advances in the price of the product. Mexican Oils sympathised. Steels responded to a further advance in prices, but Lehigh Valley Shares were weak, though the segregation plan is regarded as favourable to the stockholders. Liberty Loan 4½ per cent. made a new high level to-day. The market closed strong.

THOUGHTS AND THEORIES.

Cupid or Currency—The Fatal Fraction—A Tale of the Exchange—Human Furniture.

(BY C. H. B.)

EXACTLY seven days ago I described in a few sentences of limpid clarity the sinister influences underlying the divagations of the German mark. It was no dull statement of financial cause and effect, you will remember, but a cry from the heart. There has been no further talk of inflating the paper currency, and, while modesty forbids me to claim the credit for crushing the head of this financial serpent, I cannot refrain from pointing out that the Irish Times is read in the most unlikely places. Besides, I have personal reasons for knowing that the article in question caused a good deal of comment. Most of the comment bubbled out of an earnest young financier who appears to have been flogging the diverting question of Exchange in another part of this paper. In self-defence I was compelled to read his article.

I admit that some of the man's ideas were sound enough, but it lacked the genuinely human touch that must be present in contributions of this character if the reader is to devour them with the same delirious gusto as "How to Cook Tournedos d'Asperge" or "High Life in a Cocaine Factory: By One of the Live Hundred." Now, if I had been writing that article on Exchange, as I explained to Comrade Nichevo—I never did quite know what "nichevo" means, but I am told that an excellent paraphrase of it is to be found in Macbeth, Act I., Scene 2, line one, and as soon as I can retrieve the office Shakespeare from the engine-man's devil, I mean to look it up—I would have thrown it into the easy narrative form affected by the writers of better-class fiction.

FINANCE AND FICTION.

"At precisely twenty-eight seconds to nine on a crisp October morning in the year of Grace nineteen hundred and twenty one," I would have begun, "an alert-looking young man, in snub-nosed Walkovers and the expression of bilious concentration that distinguishes the New York financier from the common run of men, might have been seen passing through the mighty swing-doors of the great banking house of Bunk, Blankley, and Company in Lower Wall street. If one had not already guessed him to be a person of consequence, the demeanour of the coloured janitor who, on seeing him enter, looked up from the cuspidor and said, 'Mawning, Cy!' in the tone of casual deference affected by his class, would have brought enlightenment. Peter Washington Johnson, seven feet high and the best-paid nigger in New York, never said 'Good morning' to anyone under the rank of a director. On this occasion, however, the man he saluted was something more than a director—more even than a Bank President. Markets rose and fell at his lightest word. He could create a panic in Liverpool over the telephone and set Amsterdam by the ears with a six-word cable. The freights of half the world, the machinery of five continents, moved and halted at his nod. He made or broke wars. Civilised governments hung upon his lips. Uncivilised governments paid no attention to him and remained uncivilised. Well may the dusky Cerberus have treated this slight, almost furtive, figure with unusual respect. Cyrus P. Cranch was a king above financial kings. He was the man who fixed the rate of exchange on London."

I flatter myself that this is just the right kind of get-away for a financial article—if you expect it to be read outside the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, that is. The reader's interest is aroused: he wants to know what is coming next. Quite unaware that your object is to instruct him in the intricacies of Exchange, he is flattered by your apparent assumption that you and he are to explore some great financial drama arm in arm, as it were. By lunch time he will be feeling that Dublin is a cramping place for a man with a financial horizon, and will hint to his friend, the bog oak exporter, of mysterious commitments of an international character that he has had his eye on for several days.

All this is as it should be. It encourages enterprise, and is good for business. Small merchants who never heard of New York before, except as the place where Mr de Valera and his Cabinet used to go ashore disguised as members of the Transport Workers' Union, find their imaginations fired as the drama of wealth unfolds, and begin to talk impressively of opening a branch factory in Newtownards. Solicitors who have lunched on a bun and two glasses of milk for nine years suddenly decide that a Big Wind of Enterprise is blowing through Dame street, and hey! for a steak and chips at the Red Bank. There is really no end to what might happen if some faint whiff of the New York spirit were to permeate Liffeyopolis. I have visions of the Post Office Secretary making a belated effort to consider the public's convenience. I see the London and North-Western Railway supplying a second ticket-clerk at Westland row whenever the mail-boat queue is more than four hundred deep. I see—but we are getting away from the subject of Exchange.

THE GLANCE.

"Entering his private office (my article would proceed) Cranch nodded curtly to his nineteen private secretaries, hung his hat and coat behind the door, and, passing swiftly to the screened washing-stand in the corner, prepared to swallow two bismuth tablets and five grains of permanganate of laudanum. For nine years he had touched no other breakfast. Was it fate or something more subtle that on the this occasion caused him to look up and catch the look of pain that flushed the delicate features of Ulpicia Knickerbocker? Swiftly the beautiful eyes bent again over the clicking typewriter, but the mischief was done. Calling himself a sentimental fool, Cranch flung down the bismuth tablets and strode to his desk. The staid first stenographer, Miss Rosenkranz, brought book and pencil, and for four minutes and nineteen seconds the financier dictated answers to such of his letters as seemed to require his attention. But his heart was not in the business. The reproachful eyes of Ulpicia Knickerbocker kept gazing at him out of a sheet of paper that ought to have said 'Sodamint Cheerible Ribroast Millux Nine Six Lovematch.' It was an important code message, and, if Cranch had been feeling himself, would have cost a distant optimist in Havana three million seven hundred thousand pesos instead of the paltry half-million for which he was finally able to settle.

"But that is another story. Cranch's eye fastened on the word 'Lovematch.' It was a silly word to have in a code. A longing to look up and see if Miss Knickerbocker was still gazing at him possessed the man, but he fought it back. Calling himself a sentimental fool, he snatched up the financial paper. It was now ten minutes to ten. At half a minute to ten he would write on a sheet of paper the number of dollars and cents that would be paid and received by the bank, and therefore by every bank, broker, and counting-house in the United States, until ten o'clock the following morning, for pounds sterling in London. After nine years the thing had become almost a matter of routine to him, whatever national or financial destinies might hang upon his word. At first he had been in the habit of consulting his confidential clerk, whose business it was to note the maturing of interest on bonds, the declaration of dividends, large market operations abroad, and other factors that affected the buying of foreign money, and in consequence the rate of exchange to be fixed. But Cranch's gigantic brain and gimlet eye had long since learned to assimilate all the information that the painstaking clerk had been in the habit of providing, and now he seldom bothered to consult his faithful employé.

But to-day the financial paper simply refused to give up the desired information. Cranch glanced through the first five columns, and received only the impression that Fatty Arbuckles were showing a tendency to harden. It was now nine-fifty-nine. Seizing the fatal paper, Cranch wrote upon it, in his small but diamond-clear script, '3.72½.' Just that and no more. Had he written something else—3.73⅝, or 'Fix the rotten thing for yourselves'—Messrs. Bunk, Blankley, and Company might never have come near to closing their doors, perhaps; but, on the other hand, sunshine would not have come into the lives of two young people."

ULPICIA INTERVENES.

The rest of the story really concerns the question of Exchange, and my financial friend, "Nichevo," could handle it quite as well as I can. In fact, anybody can see what is going to happen. Five minutes later the confidential secretary bursts in with a white face and reminds the horror-stricken Cranch that the dividend on the Preference shares of the Texas and Tabasco Railway, the bulk of which are held by clergymen in the South of England, is payable on that day, that there will be a heavy buying of pounds in consequence, and that he has put the price down when he should have put it up. All that morning the buying of pounds sterling, at the absurdly low rate of 3.72½ dollars apiece, continues. After lunch (at which the distracted Cranch is persuaded by the lovely Ulpicia to substitute a dropped egg sandwich for another ten grains of phosphates of laudanum) there is a panic. The whole of New York begins to buy pounds sterling (at 3.72½), and the great financial house of Bunk, Blankley, and Co., having realised all its assets, mortgaged the building, and borrowed his last three hundred thousand dollars from the faithful janitor, is about to close its doors.

At this fateful moment the lovely Ulpicia rushes forward and presses a slip of paper into the hand of the maddened Cranch. It is a deposit slip of the London City and Westminster Bank, dated October 1st, showing that Miss Ulpicia Knickerbocker, alias the Duchess of Slushington, has £539,625 14s. 3½d. to her credit at that establishment. Realising that Cranch was riding for a fall and determined to save him, she had gone to a discreet publisher and sold the serial rights of her Memoirs in advance. The rest is easily told. My friend "Nichevo" could tell it. Bedded in a charming setting of romance, you have here the problem of Exchange told in a nutshell. I may have omitted to sketch in some of the details, but I will remind the reader that I am not actually doing it. I am only explaining how "Nichevo" ought to have done it—how next week, when he comes to the question of inflating the currency, he will do it.

MAN AND THE SHOW.

Evanescence is the charm as well as the tragedy of life. Man himself, less than ephemeral as the gods reckon time, becomes ridiculous only when he tries to become immutable. It has been said that there are no good habits, but that some are worse than others. All are negations of the spiritual function. Analyse one and you find that it is simply an instance of the mind, which rightly abominates order, being made subservient to matter—a razor, a desk, a teapot, or an agenda. A man with a habit is suffering from local paralysis of the soul. In age, if we are fortunate enough to escape the more fatal ailments, our arteries harden and we die. In youth every formed habit—every surrender to the demon Routine—begets spiritual sclerosis, and, if we form enough of them, we become dead ones. Physically we may survive, but our place in the community thenceforth is inanimate. We become an account book, a lever, a treatise on algebra, or an agricultural implement. From radium we have become lead.

The strange thing is that the moralists, and to some extent the philosophers, have affected to see something rather sublime in this spiritual servitude—to extol the contented drudge and frown upon the metaphysical hobo—while to the scholastics a Procrustean conformity to type and rule is alike the means and the end. We can understand the pedagogic error. Taught, rightly enough, to enthrone knowledge, and failing to remember—Bacon, indeed, was the first philosopher who ever hinted at it—that the tree of knowledge, like every other well-conducted tree, is meristematic only in selected spots, the schoolmen concluded that all knowledge was a desirable end in itself, that the "enclytic De" was every bit as important as the Law of Gravity. So they attacked the tree from the outside, never got beyond the bark, and established the convention that to try to find out what made the tree grow was a dangerous, if not actually disreputable, business for any but German philosophers and the higher clergy.

ACCORDING TO PLAN.

There is only one thing that can be done with dead knowledge, and that is to arrange it in patterns and pigeon-holes—barren catalogues of dead forms, as Cicero said of analytic jurisprudence. But Order and Routine are Siamese twins—you cannot marry one without adopting the other. So the pedagogue became a worshipper of both devils, and, if there was no beating the grammarian's microcosm into some hides, the elements of routine could be whacked into the perception of the dullest scholar. So school became a place, not where one learnt to appreciate the good and the beautiful, but where it was instilled into us that the higher citizenship consists in appearing punctually at breakfast and wiping one's feet on the mat, that it is more important to wear the right clothes than to win the game, that a Radical may be dangerously intelligent, but that only a Conservative can be really respectable.

One must delve deeper to discover why the moralists and philosophers sinned against their inheritance. The mistake they made was in regarding man as an integral part of the Universe. Turning their eyes to "rolling Heaven with all his signs revealed" (as they thought—reckoning without their Einstein) they beheld, like the Pamphylian gentleman in Plato's "Republic," the "nine infolded Spheras" revolving about the adamantine Spindle of Necessity, lulled into harmonious motion by the voices of the Celestial Sirens. Everything, they observed, moved according to plan. Turning, then, from the planets, they bent their gaze upon the lesser phenomena—the tides, the seasons, the superficial laws of dynamics and chemistry that were within their knowledge, the harmonious adjustment and reaction of the world of animate nature to what appeared to be a preconceived idea. At the top of the scale they found man, also functioning, as it seemed, according to plan, his actions and emotions governed by immutable commandments. What they all regarded as omnipotent, and, if inclined that way, worshipped, was Order, Routine, Repetition, Balance, Compensation, Harmony.

But man is not a part of the show. He is the sole spectator. He has but to shut his eyes and straightway it ceases to be a show. Its very existence is relative to his eye and brain. And it is his proper business to change the show to suit himself. Objectively his ability to do this is limited, if, indeed, he has any such power. He can apply, but not change. He can harness electricity to his trains, but he cannot establish the survival of the least fit. But subjectively man holds the Universe in the hollow of his hand. He can, by taking thought, reverse the planets in their courses and establish a millennium; but he can only do so by maintaining his spiritual freedom of action. Let him take unto himself a master, be it a parade ground or a set of intestines, and he becomes human furniture.

SOME IRISH STORIES.

VICEROY WHO KNIGHTED A CAR DRIVER.

In these days when it is the custom of authors of Memoirs to lay bare their souls and the souls of their acquaintances to the vulgar gaze of a sensation-loving public it is gratifying to find that "A Woman of No Importance," in her latest book, has not attempted to make capital out of the confidences of her friends or abused the hospitality of her hosts by prying about their homes in the hope of finding the skeleton in the cupboard.

Her moralising in "Recollections and Reflections" (London: Nash. 12s. 6d. net) may, at times, be wearisome, but her anecdotes, related in the best-tempered spirit and with a suppression of names that indicates commendable consideration for the feelings of relatives, are among the brightest we have read for many a long day, and we make no apology for the selection we reprint below.

. . . . .

There is a story told in Ireland of some Viceroy . . . who had dined not wisely, but too well, knighting a car-driver who had taken him home. The following day the Viceroy wished to cancel this knighthood, and spoke to the man to that effect, but was told that he "must ask her ladyship first!"

. . . . .

I once thought Lord Kitchener had taken leave of his senses, for he came up to me at a Caledonian ball and said he wanted to dance with me. I explained how very sorry I was that I had not one left to give him. He then said if he could arrange for an extra would I dance it with him? Knowing that he hated dancing, had not the faintest idea of any steps, and did not know one tune from another save "God Save the King" and "Annie Laurie," which latter he loved, I imagined it was a square dance he wanted. Imagine my feelings when I found he had arranged for an extra, and it was a waltz!

He did his best, and so did I, but it was a strange performance. He led off with a long stride with one leg, paused for a second or two, turned round quickly, and did the same thing twice with the other leg. I filled in the intervals by dancing round him, just to keep up the idea. When he started off with his first long stride he feared he was leaving me behind, so, I was going to say he seized me by the scruff of my neck, but it was really the scruff of my dress behind which he seized, and carried me along with him.

After a turn or two I suggested sitting down for a rest and having a chat. He agreed, being in a profuse perspiration, but said, with a beaming smile and stiff little bow, "That was fine! I felt sure I could dance with you."

I think I must surely be the only woman on the face of the earth with whom he ever danced, or thought he had danced, a waltz.

SIX MONTHS IN THE JUNGLE.

CATCHING CHIMPANZEES.

How would you set about the training of a chimpanzee? The question was suggested by the sight of four of these animals doing all sorts of amazing tricks on the stage of the Dublin Theatre Royal. It seemed to be incredible, but there they were, four of them, and eighteen months ago they were hanging by their tails from West African trees. Mr. Castang, their trainer, was kind enough to explain how it was done.

First of all you have to catch them. This is not so easy as you might think. The best place to find the right sort of "chimp" is some 350 miles west of the coast of Sierra Leone, almost on the borders of Liberia and French Guinea.

You must be prepared to remain in this unwholesome locality for upwards of six months, and even then, unless you are an old hand at the game, you may draw a blank. No firearms are used, and no decent animal trainer will tolerate cruelty of any kind. Therefore, you must have any amount of patience, and incidentally a plentiful supply of money.

A SACRED ANIMAL.

Your first difficulty is to persuade the natives that you are not a lunatic. They stand in mortal dread of the baboo, and many of them regard him as a sacred animal. As the task of catching chimpanzees is impossible without native assistance, much time, trouble, and money must be spent in getting a trustworthy band of helpers together. Gifts of all kinds must be included in your kit.

Mirrors, wrist watches, trinkets, tobacco, salt, sugar, and pieces of gaudily coloured cloth will go a long way towards the placation of wrathful kings and chieftains, and if you do not take the precaution of getting into their good books woe betide you.

Having settled such little matters as these, and overcome the native ju-ju, or superstition against the bandar log, you set out with about a hundred niggers for the bush. Here you will come across all sorts of interesting fauna, including the most dangerous varieties of reptiles, and, generally, you are likely to have a lively time. Then one of your boys will announce that a school of chimps has been located, and the real fun will begin.

A school consists of from ten to twenty adults with young, and, as your chimpanzee is a very wary beast, he must be approached with caution. As you have been cutting your way through a dense jungle for several days, you are feeling pretty tired, but that does not matter. You lie in waiting until sunset, when the monkeys climb the tall palm trees to get out of the way of snakes, leopards, and giant ants for the night, and then you post nigger sentries in a circle round the grove which holds your quarry.

LAYING THE NETS.

Your main force arms itself with nets and wooden forks for pinning them to the ground, and as soon as the natives report that "baboo no move; he sleep," you surround the grove and cut your way through the undergrowth in an ever-contracting circle.

Strict silence is essential, for the chimp has ears like a hawk, and when you have narrowed your circle sufficiently you must lay your nets around it to a height of nine feet, leaving holes for the beaters. When the trap is laid you beat the trees and make an unholy row. This brings the animals down to the ground, as you have taken care that their way of escape via the trees has been cut off, and they dash for safety in every direction.

Naturally, they get entangled in the nets, but they are doughty lads, and unless your niggers are very smart in pinning the nets to the earth they will break through by sheer force and be lost to you for ever. If you are lucky you will capture a dozen or so, of which you will choose the youngest and best. Mr. Castang took one baby of four months old, whose mother broke away, but "chimps" of this tender age are as difficult to rear as human beings, so the experiment is not to be recommended.

When you have caught about half-a-dozen specimens of the right sort you must take them back some 350 miles to the coast, which is no easy job, and transport them by sea to England. They are bad sailors, and may, or may not, survive the journey; but you must risk that. En route you discover that the kings through whose territory you pass have exhausted the gifts which you gave them when outward bound, so you must go through the whole ceremony of placation again.

Finally, you get back to England. You have your chimpanzees; the public is longing to see them ride bicycles, play bridge, and solve quadratic equations; now to teach them how to do these things. It is comparatively simple, when you have been at it all your life, and you must begin by ordering a huge stock of grapes and bannas, for your chimps are very fastidious about their diet. The rest you must worry out for yourself, as it is a strictly-kept professional secret.

ANCIENT GREECE.

HISTORY FROM PICTURES AND POTTERY.

Some admirable pictures of life and art in ancient Greece are painted by Professor Ure, M.A., in "The Greek Renaissance," recently published by Messrs. Methuen and Co., at 6s. He describes, too, the achievements of the subjects of the Pharaohs who controlled the floods on the Nile. Egypt then was a land of expert engineers and artists. The Pyramids, built by the kings of the third to sixth dynasties (about 3000-2500 B.C.) still excite wonder as works of mechanical skill.

Some of the masterpieces of Egyptian sculpture and painting belong to this early period. The statues are often life-like portraits. There are kings and nobles, overseers and scribes, who died in Egypt more than forty-five centuries ago, but whose features are as well represented to us as if we had photographs.

In the chapter dealing with the renaissance in arts and crafts, the author says that in architecture the great achievement of seventh-century Greece was the evolution of the Greek temple, of which he furnishes a description and supplies a plate. The men who put them up had a keen practical sense of proportion. The Greek architect sometimes made mistakes, but he was never silly in the way of modern architects.

ORNATE TEMPLES.

Greek temples were painted outside as well as in, the various details being picked out in bright colours. This may sound cheap and garish to readers, whose ideas of good external architecture are all based on the weathered stone and brick of our own best buildings, especially if he connects coloured exteriors with the modern atrocities in glazed tiles that at present disfigure so many of our streets. There is little doubt that our own good mediæval architects only refrained from colouring the outsides of their buildings because they could not in our moist climate make up a composition that would not quickly wear off.

The terra-cotta vases of the period were gaily coloured, and the architectural terra-cottas were coloured in the same way. Even when marble was employed, numerous details were still picked out in colours.

It is interesting to note here that the late Dr. Mahaffy, Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, in the book he published more than a generation ago states that Grecian statuary and architecture had been painted, but the statement was discredited by some writers of the time.

As between painting and sculpture, Professor Ure is of opinion that the Greeks were better able to express artistic ideas in the latter than in the former. For the study of Greek handiwork for the most abundant material is supplied by pottery, and Greek pottery, the author claims, is exceptionally valuable from the historical point of view.

In the first place, the Greeks of this period were very fond of painting pictures on their vases, and these vase paintings, besides being often very interesting from their subjects, are now our chief source of knowledge as to the achievements of Greek artists.

The book contains chapters on renaissance in thought, Governments in dark ages, and tyrants, all of which furnish interesting reading and useful knowledge.

MID-OCEAN OPERATION.

On the arrival of the Aberdeen liner Euripides at Cape Town the ship's surgeon gave an interesting account of a difficult operation performed at sea. When the vessel was five days out from London, Mr. Mason, the ship's barber, consulted the medical officer, Dr. William McMullan, who immediately diagnosed his complaint as appendicitis in one of its most dangerous forms.

Dr. R. E. Weigall, of Melbourne, a passenger on the vessel, was called into consultation, and it was decided that an immediate operation was necessary to save the patient's life. The captain gave orders for the vessel to be stopped, and the operation was successfully accomplished in the ship's hospital, and on arrival at the Cape Mr. Mason was sufficiently recovered to be allowed to leave his bed.

CINEMA NOTES.

Dublin's Plans for the Winter.

Work of the Film Censors.

Dublin is gradually shedding some of its old traditions. Some of them have gone without a sigh, while others are passing regretfully. A new city is arising, and new customs are coming into vogue. The amusements of a past generation are changing to suit the tastes of the modern. Nowhere is this more pronounced than in the realms where motion pictures hold sway.

A few years back Dublin possessed but a small number of picture theatres; now it is well stocked, and is gradually adding to its store. In a few weeks two elaborate "cinemas" will be opened in the heart of the metropolis, and others are about to be built. A cinema census reveals the fact that within the city area and immediate suburbs there are twenty-seven theatres devoted exclusively to the showing of motion pictures. Many of them compare favourably with those in leading centres across the water, and in equipment, accommodation, and comfort are thoroughly up-to-date, while the merit of their programmes is generally in keeping with Dublin's status. During the Curfew period the business was severely hit, but since the operation of the truce things have greatly improved.

There have been periods during the summer, especially in the warm weather, when business was slack, as the tendency was naturally to get out of the city. Dublin in this respect is exceptional, as, unlike large industrial centres in Great Britain, it gives easy access to the seaside and country. With the opening of the winter season the prospects for the coming months are exceedingly bright, and, given a continuance of the present peaceful atmosphere, record receipts look highly probable.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMMES.

Enterprising managers have booked many excellent pictures, which will be shown during the next few weeks. Several trade shows are announced to be held shortly, at which some notable films, the creations of the leading British and American producers, will be on view.

For those uninitiated in the secrets of the cinema business it may be explained that "trade shows" are given by renters of films in the presence of proprietors, managers, and others immediately interested in the trade, to whom opportunity is given to hire the film should it be regarded as suitable for their particular theatre. These shows at the same time serve the useful purpose of allowing the films to be censored. In Dublin the censors are appointed by the Corporation and the Vigilance Committee, and they are given full scope to exercise their authority by either entirely banning the production or removing parts that may be considered objectionable. Most managers welcome the presence of the censors, as it relieves them of much responsibility, and safeguards them against subsequent criticism.

The duty of censoring seems to be carried out satisfactorily in Dublin, as it is seldom one hears objection on the score of impropriety. There is whole-hearted co-operation in preserving a moral tone in accordance with Dublin's fair name. There has been some discussion recently regarding special performances for children, but in Dublin the need for them seems to be less than elsewhere. In any event, as far as one can ascertain it, the view of the managements is that it is for parents to exercise control in such matters over their children.

VALUE OF MUSIC.

Apart from the improved standard of pictures and the methods of displaying them, there is another feature connected with cinema performances which is showing signs of healthy development—namely, the music. This is all to the good, as anything that tends to elevate the public taste in matters musical must meet with general commendation. Nearly all our leading picture theatres have obtained the services of capable orchestras. A corps of efficient musicians is frequently as big an attraction as a famous film, and often compensates for deficiencies in a pictorial programme. The fact that the cinema affords an outlet for good musicians is in itself helpful to the cause of music, and serves to stimulate young students in their efforts.

The inclusion in advertisements of musical programmes is a feature which should be encouraged, as it gives an additional interest to the performance by knowing in advance what selections to expect. The engagement, too, of some outstanding artist is also a practice which is growing in favour. It certainly brings to the picture theatre a certain class which puts good music before good pictures, but which appreciates a happy combination of both.

IRISH CINEMA ASSOCIATION.

It is gratifying to find the interests of the cinema in the safe keeping of an excellent organisation, the Theatre and Cinema Association of Ireland, the largest body of its kind in this country. It was originally called the Dublin and South of Ireland Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, but last year, owing to its progress and development, it was re-named. It is hoped to extend its scope to all Ireland.

There is an association in Belfast and a small one in portion of the South, but it is not unlikely that both will throw in their lot with the parent body, and establish district committees in conjunction with it. The membership at present numbers thirty-eight. The Association was originally established for protective purposes to avert trade disputes, and it has admirably succeeded in its aims, as it is working amicably with the various trades unions. It has done much service in helping its members to face difficult situations. Thanks to its operations, the strain imposed on the cinema business by the enforcement of Curfew was greatly eased. Its President is Mr. David Frame, and its secretarial work is in the capable hands of Messrs. Crowley and Kennedy, chartered accountants, Westmoreland street, Dublin. With the growth of the business its activities have been greatly increased, and it is probable that, with a busy season now opening, it will find even greater scope for its useful operations.

CINEMATOGRAPH FAMILY TREES.

Amongst the latest use to which the cinematograph is being turned is the making of films for private families. These films, which range from 300 to 1,000 feet and upwards in length, according to the amount of material available, form a permanent record which many families may desire to possess. Supposing the family came over at the time of William the Conqueror, their cinematographic tree may commence then, the characters of their ancestors, of course, being enacted by living members of the present generation, and the history brought right up to date to the first tottering footsteps of the latest baby. The continuation of the film by additional scenes, when opportunities occur, will enable the present heads of the family, say, on the occasion of their golden wedding, to enjoy an entertainment harking back through the dim years to their happy childhood and subsequent marriage. Those families whose ancestors have been so remiss as to have forgotten to leave heirlooms in the shape of oil paintings of themselves and interesting records of happenings in the family, can overcome this difficulty by commencing their family records now, which may be added to from time to time by themselves or by their successors.

DUBLIN'S LATEST CINEMA.

The changes made in Sackville street since the famous Easter Week, 1916, have been in many ways bewildering. Many old buildings have gone, to be replaced by newer and up-to-date premises. The D.B.C. Restaurant, which used to be a popular haunt, has given way to the enterprise of another local company, which happily has preserved the site as a venue even more popular than a restaurant. Expense has not been spared on the building of the Grand Central Cinema, which is to be opened on Monday with a splendid film, "Pollyanna," starring Mary Pickford. Owing to labour troubles, it has taken two and a half years to complete the building, but the delay has not been altogether a handicap, as it enabled greater care to be bestowed upon every detail of construction. It is considered to have one of the best front elevations in Ireland from an artistic point of view, and it certainly is in keeping with the architectural beauty of Dublin's leading thoroughfare. There is seating capacity for about 1,000 persons, while in equipment and furnishing it is not excelled in Ireland.

Many notable pictures, including "The Mark of Zorro," in which Douglas Fairbanks appears, have been booked, so that patrons are certain of high-class entertainment. It will be good news for musical folk to learn that Mr. Arthur Darley has been engaged as leader of the large orchestra—a happy augury for the success of the musical side of the venture. The small orchestra will be directed by Mr. Kiernan. Alderman J. J Farrell., who has had wide experience in the cinema world, is chairman and managing director of the company, and in his capable hands success is assured.

37th DIVISION MEMORIAL.

The monument erected at Monchy-le-Preux, to the memory of the dead of the 37th British Division, is to be unveiled by General Debeney on October 9th. Major-General Lord Edward Gleichen, who was in command of the 37th Division from April, 1915, to October, 1916, will represent the British Army on the occasion.

WOMEN AND HOUSING.

WHY THEY SHOULD BE CONSULTED.

The remarks of Mrs. Oliver Strachey at the Women's Congress in Sheffield last week as to the part that women should take in the future in house construction, have aroused much interest. General support is extended towards Mrs. Strachey's scheme, which, as outlined in last Friday's Irish Times, is that women shall make a study of house construction, and play a part not only in the management, but in the actual building of their own houses.

It was pointed out in the same issue that no country suffers more than Ireland from bad housing conditions. This was particularly emphasised yesterday by a number of ladies in conversation with our representative. They heartily endorsed Mrs. Strachey's proposals, and put forward the claim that if the assistance of skilled women were sought, or their opinions consulted, the houses of the future would be built on a style compatible with the conveniences required in every household.

At present this was not, they stated, being done, and rooms and other apartments were so constructed that they were a standing monument to the "ignorance of men, from the household point of view."

One Dublin lady, who is well known as a leading social reformer, said that, in connection with the construction of houses, so far as the position of rooms, pantries, and other conveniences, and the introduction of labour-saving devices were concerned, the men had certainly not been a success. "I think," she said, "the women would do much better."

"My views generally, as far as houses for the middle-classes are concerned," she continued, "are that it would be well that women, if they are not architects, should certainly be consulted in the planning of buildings, as up to this the men have not made a success of what may be termed domestic architecture. This particularly refers to labour-saving devices, the position of pantries, and other conveniences."

A disinclination was shown by the ladies interviewed to go further into detail as to how the scheme outlined should be carried out. They pointed to the difficulties of the times, but expressed the hope that with the prospects of a political settlement a boom would set in as regards building construction. This happy era they were looking forward to with keen anticipation, and once it arrived they were determined that their sex would have something to say in establishing domestic architecture on a really economic basis.

A member of the Housing Committee of the Dublin Corporation said that so far as housing schemes for the working-classes were concerned every care was taken that the buildings were constructed to meet the convenience of the families occupying them. Mrs. Strachey's scheme, it was stated, was more applicable to the houses occupied by the middle-classes, and could not in any circumstances be associated with the schemes promoted and carried out by local authorities.

GOLF AND GOLFERS.

MEN WHO ARE ALWAYS "OFF THEIR GAME."

To excel at, while enjoying, any particular game requires something more than brain and brawn. It is necessary to have a certain natural aptitude. Just as a "born leader of men" will probably fail in diplomacy, never mind how much he may apply his brain to a study of its theories, because he has no natural aptitude for its intricacies, so will a "born golfer" never make his mark in cricket, although trained in accordance with the highest traditions of an English public school.

On the other hand, our links are congested with people who obviously have no aptitude for the game. Many have the required physique; others possess a nice sense of estimation, but they have not that indefinable "aptitude" for the game. They join, perhaps, because everyone else in their "set" is a golfer, or because the family urges that father should "do the same as every other decent father of your age does."

Father's natural aptitude is rather for bowls, but he is deluded into thinking that he will "soon get into the way of golf"—and, anyhow, its a nice exercise.

His efforts soon become a labour. He is depressed by being so continually "off his game," when really it is not his game at all, his natural aptitude being for some quite different branch of sport which probably he has never tried. A noted writer and orator, a master of several languages, and a close student of the classics, confessed that he had concentrated on the study of shorthand, but could not master its simple outlines. Thousands of people of indifferent education have become shorthand writers in a few weeks. The scholar had no "natural aptitude" for that pursuit.

MR. BALFOUR'S CADDIE.

A story is told of Mr. Balfour, who was playing in a Parliamentary handicap, and had an expert caddy—a rarity on Irish links—to accompany him. Mr. Balfour called for his brassey, but the lad politely, but firmly, advised: "Take your cleek, sir!" Mr. Balfour asked again for the wood. "Take your cleek, sir!" replied the boy.

At length the cleek was accepted; Mr. Balfour hit the ball up to the pin and won the hole. "You were right, my boy," he said. "Aye," retorted the caddie, "if I had your body, and you had my brains we'd make a great foursome!"

It was not a case of physique or brains; it was the boy's natural aptitude for playing golf.

Our leading golf professionals, English, Scottish, and Irish, with a few notable exceptions, have been recruited from the ranks of the caddies. That they have become experts at the game, and the masters of the most brilliant of our amateurs, must be attributed to nothing else but an aptitude for their choice. A man taking up the game at forty who never had a club in his hands, can become a proficient golfer provided that he is endowed with the essential aptitude. Of course, Time and Money are necessary adjuncts if the ordinary amateur intends to attain the championship standard, for without the time he cannot practise, and without the money he cannot do anything. A would-be golfer, be he a millionaire, can never reach the scratch mark if he has not also the aptitude for the game.

The most striking illustration of this particular "virtue" which the writer has had experience of was provided in the case of the late Michael Moran. Moran was the most brilliant golfer that this country has yet produced. Before the war he placed five Irish Professional Championships to his credit, and had he not been killed in France he would be still the champion "pro."

This finished exponent of the Royal and Ancient game could no more give you a dissertation on the driver, cleek, iron, or mashie than he could fly to the moon. "There is no use in coming to Dollymount for a lesson from me," he said on one occasion, "I cannot explain how I do it; all I know is that I can do it myself." "Here's a ball, let us hit it," was a phrase coined by Moran in his caddie days at Dollymount. With him it was sheer natural aptitude, very pronounced in his case, for golf.

GAME FOR ALL AGES.

There must be very many young men in the country possessing an aptitude for golf, but whose parents discourage them because golf is regarded as a "selfish" form of sport, a game fit only for men when they are in their dotage, or unfit for other more strenuous games. They insist on keeping the young fellows to cricket or football, thinking that they will make "men" of them, even though their sons may have given unmistakable proof that they do not care for such sports—that they have no aptitude for them.

No sane man would question the relative merits of football, cricket, or golf for young fellows, but if the youth does not care for the strenuous work of the football or cricket field, it becomes drudgery, not pleasure and amusement, for him, and he derives no physical benefit or mental stimulation from it.

Papa will tell you that golf "spoils" young fellows, makes them selfish, and all that. He has played it for years, and he knows its evil effects on the young man. No doubt, golf does spoil the youthful golfer—in a sense. We see him on his 25 handicap strutting about the club house and on the links in the most fantastic regalia, making himself a laughing stock for all, but, as a rule, such young golfers "settle down," quickly when they get on in the game, and in the long run become quite nice and companionable.

It is this fear of "spoiling" the youth of Ireland that has in part landed Irish golf into its present position, inasmuch as it has prevented that infusion of that young blood that is so vital to the well-being of the game here. If the standard of our golf is to be raised younger men who can afford it and have the necessary time should be encouraged to take up the game.

"TRAVELLER."

COMING MOTOR BOOM.

Lessons of the Railway Strike—Where Road Beats Rail—End of Farm Drudgery—The New Country Carrier.

THE recent railway strike has brought into prominence the vital necessity of an up-to-date and fully-equipped motor service, both for passenger and goods traffic. Ireland to-day, despite many laudable and enterprising efforts, presents a fertile field for development in motor traffic.

Other countries have been quick to realise the material advantage that follows in the wake of a thoroughly organised transport system. There is, however, the strange paradox in Ireland to-day that, whereas it is eminently suitable for the adoption of motor transit, it is sadly lacking in this respect.

Something, of course, is being done to develop road transport, but it is nothing compared with similar efforts elsewhere. How far this is due to political unrest is not a matter germane to the present article, the main object of which is to survey the land that lies undeveloped and to indicate the potential value of the motor as a national asset. With the dawning of the brighter day, which seems about to break, it is essential to prepare for the coming boom. Day by day the merits of the motor are being more generally recognised, not alone in urban, but in rural areas. The city merchant is awakening to its commercial value, and the farmer, true to his traditional shrewdness, is becoming alive to its virtues both for productive and distributive purposes. It is well, therefore, at this juncture to consider a few of the more important phases of motoring.

THE COST OF MOTORING.

The first essential is naturally the cost, and it is only just to strike at the outset an optimistic note. In spite of all that pessimists may say, costs are not preventing the general indulgence of a passion for motoring as a pleasure, while in regard to business the motor shows such a decided economy over other methods of transport in many, if not most, spheres of industry, and so facilitates and ensures rapid transport, that the present extent of its use is but a faint shadow of its eventual application. However, to revert to costs pure and simple, without regard to indirect economies, the near future undoubtedly holds great promise of lowered costs, apart from those that may come through mechanical improvements.

Stocks of petrol, for instance, are now so abundant that further falls in price are assured, and with the price of petrol is bound up that of lubricants, for both come from the same base. Competition is very much keener among petrol sellers, new sources of supply are being rapidly developed, and the great economy of benzol should not be forgotten. This year has seen numerous reductions in the first cost of motor vehicles, with the result that the increase in the number of new motorists has been enormous. Anticipations are, of course, expressed that there will be further reductions, but it must be remembered that motor makers have followed a painful path during the last two years, and have had to cope with enormous handicaps and interruptions of their business.

Lower material prices and labour costs will in many cases bring only a long-deferred profit to makers, and those who have once tasted the joys of motoring will be content to bear a small share of the trade's burden, confident that they will be allowed to share what further economies prove possible, for stabilisation of prices is now in sight. The great popularity of motor coach travel has given many a new joy in life—that of seeing the innumerable beauties of their own country, and it is certain that many of these travellers will not rest content till they are masters or mistresses of their own motor, handling the wheel for themselves and happy in the knowledge that they can go when and where they will, making nothing of distance, whether the call to roam comes from the beauties of lake, mountain, or sea, or from affection for friends previously out of reach.

One may record the definite reduction in running costs which has been effected by the very great reduction in the price of accessories and in the price of tyres, even of the best. Tyre cost is probably the biggest item among running expenses, and these reductions, therefore, represent a substantial inducement to motor. In some cases they will render it possible for the man who was going to have a small car to have a large one, and in others to purchase a small car instead of a motor-cycle combination, or, to carry the argument further, they will bring in at the other end of the scale the pedal cyclist to become a motor-cyclist. Here it may be observed that the motor-cycle combination is so sturdy an affair that it becomes a real family vehicle; and, indeed, at least one maker has built with this use in mind.

THE BUSINESS VALUE.

It seems almost unnecessary to refer to the value of the motor as an aid to business, but it is so very obvious one is inclined to underestimate it. In America recently business men of various kinds testified to the extension of their business brought about through the motor car, and even estimated it in percentages of increase. It is unnecessary to do that as the case is proved without it. Twenty-four hours are far too few for the days of some men, and the motor adds to the profitable hours. Very often the motor car can beat the train, particularly in many districts served only by branch line railways. It is, perhaps, in the case of the commercial traveller that the time element counts most. The motor enables him to cover greater distances than would otherwise be possible in his allotted time. This phase of motor car use is developing rapidly, and the firms which provide their representatives with cars are tilling fields of business previously inaccessible.

As in business so too in industry is the value of the motor becoming more and more recognised. In fact it is not too much to say that its greatest importance lies in the industrial sphere for quick reliable transport alone makes the pursuit of many industries possible. Only a few years ago railways and carts furnished the only means of inland transport, if one excepts canals, while now there is hardly a business of any size complete without its own motor transport.

The question of money costs hardly enters into the matter of competition between rail and road, for, without making the ridiculous claim that the motor can, under all conditions, supplant the railway, one can point to the fact that the areas and conditions of competition are extending every day. The railway companies themselves recognise this, as is shown by their recent attempt to secure legal sanction for unrestricted development of road transport. There is no doubt that the control which railway companies are just throwing off weakened their response to everyday commercial requirements, but the advantage resulting to motor traffic only hastened the development of the latter, which would hardly be slowed if freight rates were to be halved.

The fact is that motor transport holds peculiar advantages of tremendous weight. Two of the most important are certainty of delivery in a given time, and in the majority of cases an earlier delivery than can be secured by rail. A third immense advantage lies in the possibility with motor transport of keeping the loads under the control of one's own men, which means that a check is provided against delays, theft, and breakages.

THE MOTOR ON THE FARM.

The advantages which the motor has already brought to the farmer are widely recognised, and nowhere more generously than in Ireland, where the tractor has found a hospitable home. More than anyone, the farmer should appreciate the assistance of machinery, for more than anyone he knows what hard physical labour is entailed by farming. The possession of a tractor, however, not merely lifts from his shoulders the drudgery of work upon the land, such as ploughing, scuffling, harvesting, and hay-cutting, but provides him with power to run his machinery, such as threshers, chaff-cutters, mills, and cake-crushers, and yet, again, will haul to market the produce of his toil.

Thus the farmer can run a machine under the most economical conditions, inasmuch as he need not keep it idle. Even if it be idle, at least it does not eat, and every farmer knows what a large proportion of his land has to be devoted merely to hay and meadow. But labour-saving is not all. The real benefit is that the labour available can be made so much more productive. Lads are driving tractors with entire success, and with them can plough in a day at least as much as a team of horses can plough in a week. Moreover, with a tractor a job can be left till the weather is suitable, and rushed through while it remains favourable. Still further, with a tractor it is possible to give the fullest cultivation to the land, and experiments have proved that full and early preparation of the land ensures a big return in better crops.

With his own tractor a farmer is not dependent upon friends or contractors for his ploughing or harvesting. He can carry out these jobs in his own time, and at a cost much below that of horse work. Ploughs designed specially for use with tractors are now available, and other implements are being also modified with the same object. Ploughing can be done at the rate of an acre in two or three hours, and cultivating, hay-cutting, and harvesting at the rate of two acres an hour.

The modern farmer, however, does not stop at owning a tractor. He finds it pays him to keep a car. This will cut down the cost of the time he need spend away from his farm, and enable him to bring home at once from station or market town any tools, manures, and so on for which his work is waiting. It also enables him to meet his fellows more easily and often. The tractor gives him leisure; the car enables him to enjoy it. It is possible to get interchangeable bodies for a car, so that it can be used as a light wagon when not required for passenger work. No farmer will put up with isolation when he has once known how quickly he can run into town and back in a car, and how it gives a new zest to his life and stimulates his enterprise.

SCOPE FOR DEVELOPMENT.

There are many indications of increasing activity in all phases of the motor industry in Ireland. The scope is enormous, and the reward of those who are first in the field will be equally great. Apart from the profit to be derived from the development of the tourist traffic and trips to the seaside and country, there is a big field in Ireland for development of traffic between towns. Owing to the comparatively small extent of the Irish railway systems Ireland, indeed, offers a field unique for the profitable running of motor 'buses and motor coaches, with a consequent stimulation of the life of the countryside. In England special vehicles have been arranged by one company to precede the passenger vehicles, and passengers arrive at their hotels to find their luggage awaiting them, unpacked if desired, and laid out by a valet and lady's maid.

Mention of luggage recalls another development, which is the regular running of parcel vans. In this case the promoters of the service, a motor 'bus company, boldly took the plunge by running these vans to schedule instead of merely to pick up loads to order. There should be room for such a service in many parts of Ireland, and it could be allied to the carrying of passengers and mails. Another area of activity in which the motor is now used is that of the country carrier, with his regular trips to the market towns. A new generation of country carrier is arising, and everywhere the motor vehicle is ousting the horse. Country people now spend less time on the road and more in the market town, and the isolation of the village is being swept away.

It seems to be a popular fallacy that the pleasures of motoring depart with summer. The fact is that they are always there, and, if anything, one appreciates them more, as they form a stronger contrast with the longer periods spent indoors during the winter. Never is the keen air so stimulating, and if the elements are unkind ample protection against them can be secured, especially with the modern windscreens. Rear seat passengers can have a screen all to themselves with advantage, and side shields can be added to the front screen.

There is nothing to compare with a drive out in the frosty air upon roads free of dust, and the bright ringing of the wheels upon the hard surface in one's ears. Engines, too, seem to feel the stimulus of winter air and to show an eagerness for the chase. One leaves behind the winter dulness and gloom of the town, and tastes the keen sweet air at its clearest and best. There is no need to feel cold, with the wide selection of garments available and various devices for the preservation of warmth, among them those for turning the supply of electricity to use in warming the hands and feet and in warming the carburetter for an easy start. In short, there are many who would consider that winter motoring is the best motoring, while among its advantages are that necessary journeys and those to evening engagements can be made with celerity and comfort whatever the state of the weather.

EVOLUTION OF THE TRACTOR.

SEARCH FOR IDEAL MACHINE.

In modern farming the use of the tractor has now become essential. During the period of food shortage occasioned by the war its utility was strikingly demonstrated, and as a result many progressive farmers regard a tractor as an all-important portion of their equipment.

When first introduced it was something of a novelty, and the enterprising agents who had tractors to dispose of were very keen in demonstrating the merits of their machines. Most of these on the market at the time were of American manufacture, and has been tried with success on the far-flung acres of the United States and Canada. They had been built, primarily, to suit the conditions prevailing there, and consequently were not without points of construction which told against their efficiency in the smaller fields of Ireland.

At the same time it was clearly shown that they could be relied upon to cover a large acreage satisfactorily in a time of emergency; and, in response to the insistent call for increased food production, many of our farmers availed themselves of the facilities thus afforded in order to get their work done rapidly. The quantity of food produced in this way sufficed to avert a famine, but without the assistance of tractors this result would have been impossible, as skilled manual labour was not available to the full extent required.

As a labour-saving invention the farm tractor has justified its existence. Under existing conditions this is a factor that weighs very strongly with producers. While war prices ruled there was little difficulty in paying farm workers a much higher scale of wages than formerly. Chiefly because suitable labour was scarce, and tractors were only availed of because they hastened the work, circumstances are now assuming a very different aspect.

Wholesale prices of farm produce are gradually falling—our agricultural readers will vouch for that—although consumers are not getting the benefit, and faced as they are with the possibility of a big reduction in their income, farmers are seeking a way to reduce expenditure. In some cases their decision has been to let the land go back to grass, and dispense with the services of workmen, thus adding to the list of unemployed, and at the same time reducing the area under cultivation. If it were simply a question of saving labour, the difficulty could be met by the use of a tractor.

Among other things to be taken into account are the present cost of artificial fertilisers and feeding stuffs, as well as the price of machinery, but even in face of these and the present depression, it should pay the careful farmer to maintain the fertility of his land. If wages remain high and prices fall—a very unlikely event—he will derive great advantage from a tractor, which will not only enable him to get through a big lot of field work, but also be available for hauling binders or mowers, threshing, and the driving of farm machinery.

Manufacturers are now getting away from the idea that great weight is essential for a tractor to work efficiently on the land. In addition to aggravating every drawback, weight above a certain limit increases the risk of breakages where stones are concerned, and the danger of injury to the land from compression. Besides this, a heavy tractor is at a distinct disadvantage for the other and lighter forms of cultivation, such as grubbing, cultivating, seeding, harrowing, and harvesting, especially where the land is sown out with grass seeds.

The light tractor is quite suitable, not only for ploughing, but for the other farming operations, and, therefore, embraces all the usual requirements of a farm tractor, including the driving of a threshing mill and other farm machinery. Field trials in Scotland have shown clearly that light machines, adequately provided with spuds, grip the ground and perform the work better than the heavier machines.

As bearing on this, it is suggested that the weight of a tractor should not exceed 30 cwt., and that the horse-power should be not less than 20 b.h.p. Having secured a tractor, it is important that it should be kept under cover. If left exposed to the elements when not in use, its life will be short and not very serviceable, whereas with ordinary care it may be quite good for seven or eight years. The amount of work done per day varies.

American statistics indicate that from 6½ to 10 acres per day of ten working hours can be ploughed. The amount of ground covered will naturally vary with the size and shape of the fields to be negotiated, and the time lost in turning to get into position will affect the cost of fuel.

The ploughs used in connection with tractors have undergone many improvements since their first appearance in this country. There are now on the market devices for adjusting the ploughs to suit land of varying tenacity, and also for ensuring a tidy headland, the ragged appearance of headlands on tractor-ploughed fields thus disappearing.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

WEEK-END MARKET LIFELESS. PARENT TYRE DIVIDEND SURPRISE.

The week-end market on 'Change was quite interesting, if exceedingly quiet, and some irregular fluctuations were established. The Parent Tyre dividend notification took the market completely by surprise, with the result that buyers came forward more freely only to find sellers had advanced their limits appreciably. The year's 5 p.c. Cumulative Pref. and 8 p.c. Ordinary Cumulative dividend, i.e., 1s. and 1s. 7½d. per share respectively, will be paid at end of this month, when the annual meeting is to be held, and a distribution of 25 p.c., or 5s. a share on Deferred Shares, is declared and payable when the Dunlop Rubber Company pays on the "C" Cumulative Preference Shares. The postponement of dividends on the Pref. and Ord., and no payment on the Def., was how the majority of the market read the recent situation, judging by the depression in the shares of late, so the relief to holders by the actual dividend statement is very real. The market having been quite wrong regarding the company, it is quite fair to suggest that the extreme pessimistic reports and rumours as to the position of the Dunlop Rubber Company, as reflected in current prices, will also be found to be exaggerated when the time comes for issuing the year's accounts, probably early in December next. Oil and Tobacco markets were depressed. City Steam Stock again advanced.

The Funds were firm all day. Consols rose ⅛ further to 49¼, War Loan 3½ p.c. ⅛ to 88¼, and ditto 5 p.c. by Deed 1/16 to 88 1/16, while Irish Land 2¾ p.c. fell ¼ to 48½.

Banks were quiet. Royals fell 1/16 to 10⅝ x.d for an odd lot. Nationals at 16, and Provincials at 19½ were steady.

Among Breweries, Guinness issues alone quoted. The Ord. fell 1/16 to 38⅜, and the Pref. repeated 10 for odd lots.

City of Dublin Steam Stock rose 1 to 123, and in Telegraphs, Marconi Ord. fell 1s. to 32s. The "Marines" quoted 21s. 3d.

Home Rails were neglected. Midland Great Western 4½ p.c. Debs. repeated 53, while Dublin and South-Eastern Pref. closed ⅞ lower at 38½ to 40 nominally. Ballinrobe and Claremorris Baronial closed wanted at 61s. 6d. Nothing else quoted in this market.

There was little doing in Parent Tyre issues owing to the withdrawal of selling limits, but the shares were eagerly bid for. Deferred rose 4s. 3d. to 34s. bid. The Ord. were called 13s. bid, but a more correct rendering of the market was 14s., 15s., while the Pref., which rose 6d. to 9s. 9d. the previous day, were bid for at 10s. and did not offer under 12s. Dunlop Rubber Ord. were 1½d. better at 7s.

Among Manufacturing shares, Coats Ord. fell 6d. to 46s., but Spinners were steady at 33s. 9d. Edmond Johnson Pref. rose 8d. to 10s.

In Trading, etc., practically nothing was done. Irish Times 2nd Pref. rose 3d. to 13s. 9d.

Other business done included Imperial Tobacco, which fell further to 48s. 6d., 48s. 3d. Mexican Eagle Oils fell 7s. 6d. to 68s. 1½d., but later rallied to 70s. Shells fell 1/16 to 82s. 6d., after being 81s. 10½d.

THE LATER MARKET.

War Loan 5 p.c. harder at 89⅛, 1/16. Conversion 3½ p.c. Loan quoted 62⅝, and British-American Tobacco 61s. 9d. Mexican Eagle Oil rallied 1s. 3d. to 71s. 3d. Dunlop Rubber French Incomes marked 13s. 6d.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

We have received a communication from the Alby United Carbide Factories, Ltd., with reference to a statement from Norway, which has appeared in the Press, relative to negotiations for a certain scheme of reconstruction of the Alby United Carbide Factories, Ltd. They desire to point out that preliminary arrangements have now been arrived at for the transfer of the odd assets to the English Syndicate, who have purchased the control of the Tyssefaldene Power Company, and had originally made proposals for the reconstruction referred to. As soon as these preliminary arrangements are completed it is the intention of the directors to call the shareholders together, and to submit the proposals to them for their consideration and approval.

A New York telegram states that Bradstreet's Monthly Index indicates that the circle of improvement in prices is widening.

Although the bulk of supplies of gold nowadays finds its way to the United States, there is a gold reserve of £126,595,285 at the Bank of England. According to Messrs. S. Montagu and Co., imports of gold into America this year, up to September 10th last, amounted to $521,317,423. Exports were $11,357,051, making a net import of $509,960,377. This large aggregate—24,669,338 ozs.—exceeds by 8 per cent. the record world production of 1915—namely, 22,674,568 ozs., valued at $468,724,918. The British Empire heads the list of importers with 44 per cent., valued at $223,995,152. France and her Colonies comes next. India has been an unusually large exporter of gold, because, in the estimation of the Indian Bazaars, gold had become dear and silver cheap. This idea accordingly finds its reflex in the present heavy imports of silver.

The heaviness that has recently attacked the market for London Bank Shares serves to direct attention to the yields obtainable from the London group, and at the current quotations most of the shares return over 6 per cent. on the money. Lloyds pay £6 16/-, and London City Westminster and Parrs give 6 per cent. on the fully paid shares, and 7½ per cent. on the partly paid. London Joint City and Midland fully paid offer 6¼ per cent., and the partly paid about 10/- more. From both issues of the National Provincial and Union Bank of England Shares 7 guineas per cent. is the present yield, and Williams Deacons at 34/- pay about the same rate. Barclays "A" Shares return 6¼ per cent., which is about half-a-crown more than the "B" Shares. It is some time since the London Banking Shares afforded as good an average return as just now.

STRONG WAR LOANS.

NEW COLONIAL ISSUE.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

The gilt-edged market wound up the week in firm style, the tendency being quite detached from the general depression prevailing in most other parts of the House. Dealings commenced yesterday in the new Ceylon scrip, on the basis of ⅜ prem., and the price eventually improved to ⅝ prem. There was a considerable turnover. The loan was fairly heavily "stagged," but the investment demand was more than sufficient to relieve those who wanted to take a quick profit. Underwriting was in progress for a 6 p.c. New South Wales Loan of £3,000,000, redeemable in 1930-40, to be issued at 95½ p.c. at which price the yield offered, without reckoning profit on redemption, will be a shade over 6¼ p.c. The underwriting began outside the House on Thursday, but the new loan was not received with quite such good favour as other recent Colonial issues.

NO CHANGE IN DULL TONE.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The Stock markets continued dull and depressed, and features were few and usually adverse. Renewed weakness was shown in the Oil market. The gilt-edged market, however, was strong, though Consols showed a decline of 1/16 to 48⅞. The 3½ p.c. War Loan rose ¼ to 88 5/16, the 4½ p.c. ⅛ to 81⅞, and the 5 p.c. ⅛ to 89⅜. Victory Bonds rose ⅛ to 76⅜. Irish Land Stock rose ⅛ to 48⅝. India 3½ p.c. was ⅛ higher at 57⅝ and the 7 p.c. ⅛ at 103⅝.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES showed the same depression as the remainder of the markets. Japanese Bonds were heavy, and the 4½ p.c. lost 1 at 112. Russian 4 p.c. lost 3 to 6. French Bonds and German Threes were unchanged. Chinese Bonds were maintained, but they closed unaltered.

HOME RAILS after the spurt of yesterday relapsed into lifelessness, and few deals were recorded. Great Westerns lost ½ at 65½, and Midland Def. ½ at 40½.

In FOREIGN RAILS "Canpacs" were unchanged, but Grand Trunks were weak and lower; the 1st Pref. fell 1 to 16 and the 2nd Pref. ½ to 8. Argentines continue to move down. "B.A.G.S." were ½ lower at 52½, as were Pacifics at 35, Westerns at 52½, and Centrals at 49½. Mexican Rails also were very flat. The Ord. fell ½ to 14, the 8 p.c. Pref. 1 to 38, and the 6 p.c. Pref. 1 to 25. San Paulo Ord. dropped 4½ to 101½, Armavir Touapse 1 to 6½, Entre Rios Pref. 1 to 50, while Leopoldinas at 17½ were ½ down, and United of Havana at 49½ lost a similar fraction.

NARROW MINES.

"JOHNNIES" WEAK.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

Yesterday provided a fitting close to a week of dulness and depression in the Stock Exchange. Except for one or two directions, business was almost at a standstill, and prices for the most part moved aimlessly within narrow limits. Nothing happened to create a cheering influence in the Mining market, the publication of the gold returns for September arousing hardly a ripple of interest. As usual there was a little professional evening-up of books over the week-end, but, owing to the paucity of trading on preceding days, such operations were of too insignificant a character to move prices to any material extent. A recovery in the price of gold to £5 8s. 8d. per oz. was also of too trifling a nature to cause any change in sentiment, while Paris and the Cape remained indifferent. Some forced realisations were in the circumstances sufficient to cause weakness in the Kaffir section, where shares are being dribbled out daily almost indiscriminately. As there is no public demand worth mentioning quotations suffer. The losses were not great, but they were fairly well distributed, and once more not a single improvement on balance could be recorded. "Johnnies" were rather persistently offered, and relapsed sharply, and Randfontein and most of the other usually active counters receded. Closing prices:—

DEPRESSED OILS.

FURTHER SELLING OF "EAGLES."

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

The Oil Share market yesterday was once more entirely dominated by the movements in Mexican Eagles, which opened with a dull appearance, a considerable amount of liquidation having again to be faced, and it is becoming obvious that confidence in the market as a whole is being badly shaken by the continuous selling. Mexican Eagles opened at slightly below the overnight level, and when shares began to come out freely a steady decline occurred, the price at one time being no better than 3⅜, but from this point a gradual improvement occurred, which took them up to 3 11/16, while the final price of 3 11/16 left them 1/16 down on balance. The new shares lost a like amount at 3⅜, and the Prefs. gave way ⅛ to 3¼. In common with Mexican Eagles, other leading shares and some of the more speculative favourites developed a dull tone, but the turn in Eagles helped the rest of the market, and final prices were generally above the worst. Shells made a poor start at 4 13/16, fell to 4¼, rallied to 4 5/16, and left off 4¼, the result of the day's business being a gain of 1/16. Royal Dutch, however, were a dull spot throughout the day, a decline of ½ being finally shown at 34⅜. Burmahs were depressed during the early hours, falling to 4⅝, but a sharp rally occurred in the afternoon, which took them to 5, at which they closed, showing an improvement of 1/16. Anglo-Persian First and Second Prefs. were easier at 21s. 1½d. and 21s. 7½d., respectively. Closing prices:—

INDUSTRIALS DULL.

PARENT DEFERRED A BRIGHT SPOT.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

Conditions in the Miscellaneous and Industrial market yesterday remained much about the same as those ruling during the greater part of the week. The sagging tendency which has been noticeable of late was relieved to some extent by one or two bright spots. Parent Tyre, for instance, were quite a good market, following the announcement regarding the payment of dividends after the receipt by the company of the dividend on the Dunlop "C" Pref. holding. For this reason Parent Tyre Def. were an active market up to 35s., and finished 1/16 higher on the day at 1⅝. Among other Miscellaneous Trading descriptions, Dunlops were the turn harder at 6s. 10½d. and Lever issues were better, the 7 and 8 p.c. both closing at 14s., or slightly higher on balance. Oilcakes continued their decline, losing another 1s. at 23s. Alby United Carbide were lowered to 1s. 9d. on the news that the negotiations in regard to a scheme for the reconstruction of the factories in Odda had failed. Welsbach Ord. were a little better at 1/16, and Tobacco shares were quietly steady, with the exception of Imperials, which lost the turn at 48s. 9d. Motor descriptions trended downwards, Dennis losing 6d. at 21s. 6d., and Cubitts Ord. and Pref. 1s. 3d. at 5s. and 7s. 6d. respectively. Banks remained fairly steady, and in the Land section, Hudson's Bays were maintained at 5½, after being lower, but Forestals gave way to 23s. 9d., and Pekin Shansi to ⅝. Imperial Continental Gas have lately come into prominence again on the revival of talk concerning the receipt of further payments from Germany. The Stock further appreciated yesterday to 142½, or 10 higher on balance.

FALL IN SHIPPING SHARES.

Shipping descriptions depreciated still further, P. and O. Def. losing another 5 at 350, and Cairn Line and Cunards 6d. each at 17s. 6d. Insurance were without interest. Elsewhere Courtaulds were maintained at 33s., after being bid up to 33s. 7½d. in the Textile section, but Amalgamated Cottons were a weak spot, the price receding 9d. to 10s. 9d. Joshua Hoyle lost 1/16 at 1 1/16. In Stores, Harrods at 23s. 9d., J. Barkers 32s. 3d. ex.-div., and Selfridge 6 p.c. Prefs. only 20s. 9d. ex.-div. Whiteleys remained at their overnight level of 26s. ex.-div. On the announcement that no dividend is possible on the Ord. shares, Army and Navy Co-op. were marked back sharply to 29s. Among Caterers, Liptons further hardened to 18s., but J. Lyons lost 1/32 at 2 11/16, while among Breweries, Allsopp Ord. lost a point at 52½. A decline of ⅛ in Anglo-South American provided the only change in Bank shares, and the new City of London Electric Debs. remained about 2⅝ prem.

Heaviness again ruled in the Iron, Coal, and Steel departments. Vickers and the tax free Pref. were not so good at 11s. 6d. and 13s. 6d. respectively, while Armstrongs were slightly easier at 16s. 9d. ex.-div. Swan Hunters added to the previous day's fall, and finished at 25s. 6d. only, and Consett Iron at 1 1/16 and Dorman Longs at 16s. 3d. were a few pence lower. Exceptionally, Guest Keens rose 3d. to 28s. 9d. ex.-div. Marconis remained at 1 11/16, and the Prefs. at 1 1/16 in the Wireless section, but Cables showed an irregular tendency.

RUBBER SHARES BETTER.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

There was a slight improvement in the Rubber share market yesterday, and not only was there more business, but prices were better, and some important advances were recorded. Anglo-Ceylon at 46s. 3d. put on 1s. 3d., Grand Central rose 1s. 1½d. to 15s. 1½d. Labu advanced 2s. 6d. at 17s. 6d. and Kuala Lumpur 1s. 6d. to 37s. 6d. Batu Caves fell 9d. to 12s. 9d., Damansara 1s. to 8s., Sungei Bahru 1s. 3d. to 10s., and Telogoredjo 1s. 3d. to 25s.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LIMITED.—The numbers of cattle on offer at Thursday's sale were much smaller. Following a further slump in the fat cattle market and a worse trade in cross-Channel markets, stores met a further set-back, and many lots could not be sold even at a substantial reduction in prices.

THE MONEY MARKET.

CHEAP TREASURY BILLS.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The preliminary results for this week's 60 millions of Treasury bills showed that for the Monday to Friday bills tenders at £98 18s. 10d. will receive about 63.9 p.c., and above in full, while for Saturday week bills tenders at £98 19s. 1d. and above will receive in full. This is only about 4 5/16 p.c., and it looks as if the average rate will be somewhere in the neighbourhood of 4¼ p.c. The market had been going for 4⅜ or 4 7/16 p.c., and appears to have been pretty badly left as a result. The assumption is that the banks are employing the credit produced by Ways and Means advances in Treasury bills, and, having sufficient short-dated paper, are buying straight from the Bank. Discount rates remained firm until the results were known, but then became nominal, awaiting to-day's "tap" rate. Daily loans were in plentiful supply at 3½ down to 3 p.c.

The price of gold rallied 1d. to 108s. 8d. per oz. fine. Bar silver recovered ⅛d. for both cash and forward business to 41⅞d. and 41⅝d. per oz. respectively.

There has been less movement in foreign exchanges, and dealing appears to be settling down for the week-end. New York continues to move in favour of London, the best rate, as usual, being touched in the early afternoon. The quotation then went to 3.78⅞, but it weakened towards the close, although nearly a cent higher than the late rate on Thursday night. Paris cheque fluctuated between 52.25 and 52.35, showing little net alteration at the close of public business. Brussels cheque followed the same course, but at a distance of a franc, and German marks moved between 459 and 463. Otherwise there is little change.

MARKET REPORTS.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE, Friday.—The attendance of buyers at this Exchange continues very limited, and in the idle state of business prices are almost impossible to record with accuracy. Most transactions on town seem to be doing in a private groove, and our Corn Exchange in the circumstances has become unattractive, and is getting the go-by. There is little change in values from the lower scale recorded on Tuesday, and any business doing is at about the currencies then given.

I BUY OATS.—A. H. Smith, 10 Burgh quay, Dublin.—(Advt.)

MAIZE slow; mixed American 33/- ex ship, yellow African 32/6, white 34/- landed, Plate 32/- landed.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—The further decline in the Argentine counteracted the Chicago improvement, and WHEAT here again weakened at the outset, but afterwards recovered. C.i.f. parcels No. 1 Manitoba October-November sold at 54/6, 55/3, and 54/4½, No. 1 due at 56/- to both Liverpool and Manchester, No. 2 due 55/-, No. 2 hard winter afloat 53/- to 52/6, October-November 53/- quarter. In MAIZE parcels, River Plate afloat sold early on to Liverpool at 28/6, but 28/6 per quarter paid later on, Manchester. Wheat on the spot was quiet and prices showed a considerable decline from last market day. Maize spot parcels were in only moderate demand, with all descriptions quoted round about 6/8 to 6/9 per cental. FLOUR also quiet and local milled reduced 1/- per 280lbs. on all grades. Beans and peas attracted little attention. OATMEAL slow and American and Canadian easier, but English and Scotch unaltered. MILL OFFALS quiet, with bran unchanged, but thirds in some cases obtainable at 10/- per ton less money.

WAKEFIELD, Friday.—A good attendance and a fair supply of grain, but little or no demand. Prices are easier all round, wheat and barley each being 5/- per quarter lower; oats 2/-, and beans and maize 1/- to 2/-.

DERBY, Friday.—Business slow. Wheat, 48/- to 51/6; oats, 28/- to 31/- delivered. Barley quoted lower, but trade therein practically nil.

CATTLE.

BIRKENHEAD, Friday.—There was a much worse trade and a very limited demand at considerably lower prices for the cattle on offer to-day. The average price for the best bullocks and heifers was around 10d., secondary bullocks and heifers were very difficult to move at proportionately lower rates. Good cows 6d. to 8d. No demand for bulls and inferior cows. There was very little business doing in the lamb department, 1/1 per lb. sinking the offal being the top quotation for best lambs. At market—2,600 cattle and 4,158 lambs.

Lever's Palm Nut Cake and Meal. Steel Shelters suitable for Garages, Cart or Cattle Sheds.—Wm. Rourke, 36 North Circular road, Dublin.—(Advt.)

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—American markets were irregular, with hogs easier and speculative products dearer, but although recent arrivals of BACON at this port have been small, stocks are still liberal, and holders continue to display anxiety to make sales, and all descriptions, with the exception of long clears, are more or less reduced. American Wiltshires quoted 95/- to 102/-, long clears 110/- to 115/-, backs 96/- to 103/-, bellies 98/- to 102/-, Cumberlands 96/- to 100/- per cwt., with buyers again holding off. HAMS also freely offered at lower prices, long cut at 118/- to 123/-, short cut 114/- to 118/-, skinless 118/- to 122/-, extra skinned 125/- to 130/- per cwt. CHEESE quiet and easier; New Zealand quoted 96/- to 104/-, States 100/- to 103/-, Canadian 102/- to 105/-. BUTTER quiet at late rates for Government owned, with Danish 230/- to 235/-, Irish creameries 178/- to 185/- cwt. EGGS again rule firm and dearer, with Irish hen at 29/6 to 30/6 and Canadian 27/- to 27/6 per 120.

PATRICK KEHOE, Ltd., Irish Bacon Curers and Lard Refiners. Importers of American Provisions. (Estd. 100 years.)—103 FRANCIS ST., DUBLIN.—(Advt.)

MANCHESTER, Friday.—BUTTER—Danish finest was firmer at about 5/- to 10/- advance to 235/-, with Irish creameries unchanged, and Government butter practically neglected. BACON—American grades were offered in increased quantities at irregular prices, Irish and Continental cuts remaining steady and unchanged. LARD in quiet request at 79/- per cwt. for refined. CHEESE—Prices of Lancashire and Cheshire finest were fairly steady, with imported easier around 104/- to 108/-. EGGS were firmer on short supplies, with best Irish quoted at 30/- to 32/6, and Danish 31/6 to 33/-.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, Friday.—There was an extraordinary glut of all descriptions of seasonable vegetables on market this morning, for which sales proved dull, tedious, and cheap. Even at comparatively giving-away prices most commodities were difficult to clear. Irish apples also continue in glutted supply and difficult to find customers for at low figures. Best black grapes, 1/6 to 3/6 per lb.; Muscats, 3/6 to 4/-; imported green, 26/- to 30/- and 35/- per barrel; Canadian pears (first ever imported), 14/- to 15/- per case; American, 16/- to 18/-; English, 16/- to 18/- per half-bushel; Dutch, 16/- per barrel; Irish pears (scarce), 3/6 to 6/-, and extras, 8/6 per dozen; ordinary, 9/- to 15/- per keg, and 3/6 to 4/6 and 5/- per tray; apples, British Columbia, 28/- to 30/- per box; Irish dessert, selected, 34/- to 45/- per barrel; best cookers, 12/- to 16/- per barrel; common-classes apples, 9/6 to 13/- per barrel, 6/- to 8/- per keg, 2/3 to 2/8 and 3/- per tray; tomatoes, 6d. to 8d. and 9d. per lb.; cucumbers, 2/- to 5/- per dozen; vegetable marrows, 2/- to 6/- and 8/- per dozen; cauliflowers, 1/6 to 2/6 and 3/- per dozen; seconds, 8d. to 10d. ditto; splendid large Irish onions, 1/2 and 1/3 per tray of about 8lb.; kidney beans, 9d. to 1/6 ditto, and 2/- per float; York cabbage, 4/- to 6/-, 10/- to 24/- per load, extras 31/- to 33/-; celery, 1/3 to 1/9 and 3/6, extras 5/- to 6/- per bundle; white turnips, 1d. to 3d. per large bundle; carrots, 1/- to 1/6 per doz. bunches; Swede turnips, 1/9 to 2/3 per cwt.; spinach, 2/- per bag; parsnips, 4/-) to 4/6 per cwt.; sprouts, 2/- to 3/5 per float; parsley, 3d. to 6d. per tray and heap; lettuce, 2d. to 4d. per dozen; radishes, 1/- per dozen bunches. Other commodities average on above lines.

DUBLIN POULTRY AND GAME, Friday.—Market keeps generally well stocked with turkeys, chickens, ducks, etc. The undertone in values points in the cheaper direction. In fact, geese are 3d. per lb. lower owing to hot, bad-keeping weather, and turkeys also may be written 1d. to 2d. per lb. cheaper. Fair inquiry for suitable chickens, but ducks still a poore sale. Little game and practically no wild fowl coming in; most arrivals of game coming to hand in soft condition, and such make a disappointing account. Partridge, 2/9 to 3/- and 3/6; grouse, 3/- each; turkeys, 1/2 to 1/4 and 1/6 per lb., dead weight; geese, 1/- ditto; chickens, 1/- to 1/3; coop-fattened, 1/4 per lb.; pullets now at end of season, making 4/- to 5/- each; fat ducklings of top class, 4/6 each; fat ducks, 3/6; stores, 2/6 to 3/-; old ducks, 1/- to 2/- each; hares, 3/-; rabbits, 1/3 for prime; young pigeons, 9d.; old and wild, 6d.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGGS, Friday.—The butter market is very freely supplied, but the greater part is of very variable character, and prices are materially down over the week. To-day's general standard price for creams is around 1/7½ per lb., but for some special dairies 1/8 is paid for fresh makes. Secondary descriptions anywhere from 1/5 to 1/7, according to character. Farmers' butter of coarse description is plentiful, but fine makes scarce. For good average firkins terms are around 1/2 to 1/2½, and for superfine firkins up to 1/3 and 1/3½, with fine cools and separators from 1/3½ to 1/5 per lb.; separators, however, are rather scarce, and are more or less nominally quoted. Coarse butter of marketable order figures around 1/- per lb. For eggs country dealers are very extreme in their pretensions, and they appear to be supported to some extent by shippers, but locally prices are difficult to maintain, and trading in eggs recently is unremunerative to both merchants and retailers alike, as the public are exacting with regard to size and quality owing to the high rates. Merchants at this end, therefore, are inclined to refuse consignments at country quotations, and Dublin for the present remains rather bare of eggs in consequence. Best case hen eggs run from 24/6 to 27/- per 120, but up to 29/- and 30/- has been paid for extra selected qualities in a retail way. Seconds and smalls from 20/- to 23/- per 120.

DUBLIN POTATO, Friday.—The reduction in price of potatoes recorded yesterday has not apparently influenced the trade one way or the other. Business continues of a limited dragging nature. City rates, 5/6 to 6/- per cwt. for best handled tubers. Supplies more than ample. In calculating a fair profit retailers should not exceed 1/- per stone to the public.

DUBLIN FISH, Friday.—Of yesterday's fish supply here nearly 9 tons of unsound sorts were confiscated, and of this morning's arrivals about 3 tons shared like treatment. Of course, the present extraordinary close weather is a serious determent to overholding such perishable commodities. Whiting and herrings entailed most serious losses. Among this morning's supply of fish, 12 chests lobsters and 60 or 70 packages herrings and mackerel featured. Leading sales averaged:—First pick lobsters, 10/- to 15/- per 13; seconds, 5/- to 7/6; small, 2/- to 4/-; turbot, 1/6 to 10/- and 12/; brill, 6d. to 3/- and 4/-; best black soles, 20/- to 30/- per 8 and 9 pairs; mediums, 10/- to 15/-; slips, 5/- to 7/6; large plaice, 6/- to 8/- per 4; others, 4/- to 8/- per 8; half-boxes plaice, 20/- to 80/-; codfish, 30/- to 40/-; whiting, 3/- to 5/-; ray, 15/- to 20/-; herrings, 4/- to 15/- per box, and 28/- per barrel.

BILLINGSGATE FISH, Friday.—Supply liberal; fair demand. Soles, 18d. to 22d.; slips, 18d. to 23d. per lb.; live eels, 14/- to 30/-; dead, 20/- per draft; turbot, 6/- to 9/-; brill, 7/- to 8/-; plaice, 8/- to 10/-; halibut, 13/- to 15/-; lemon soles, 10/- to 12/-; whitches, 6/-; cod, 4/6 to 5/6; whiting, 2/- to 3/-; flake, 4/-; hake, 7/- to 8/-; haddock, 3/- to 4/6 per stone.

GRIMSBY FISH, Friday.—Forty-six North Sea, one Iceland trawler, and one liner landed a good supply; demand moderate. Plaice, 10/- to 11/-; lemon soles, 10/6; halibut, 14/- to 15/-; cod, 4/- to 5/6; skate, 5/- to 7/-; small haddocks, 1/9; kit, 2/9; gibbed, 4/-; dabs, 5/- to 7/-; codlings, 4/- per stone; soles, 1/8; turbot, 9d.; brill, 7d. per lb.

CORK BUTTER, Friday.—Firsts, 111/-; fresh butter, 102/- per cwt.

PRODUCE.

JUTE—A steadier tone governed the market to-day, sellers being less pressing, but demand continued rather quiet. Native first marks assortment old crop subs. September-October steamer usual ports quoted £31 10/-, lighting subs. do. £27 10/-, and heart subs. £20 10/- ton. Hessians steady, quiet. HEMP—Manila steadily held, and there is a moderate demand. New Zealand fair September-November £37 per ton; Italian quite nominal. SHELLAC steadier. COPRA—Market rather unsettled. RUBBER—Market exhibited a quiet tone. CLYDE CRUSHED SUGAR, Friday.—Official Report—Market steady; no change in prices; moderate demand.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW, Friday.—We had a somewhat smaller market of hay here this morning, and rather pronounced scarcity of choice County Dublin first and second crop. Trade, however, for all descriptions of hay ruled distinctly slow, although favoured by fine weather conditions. Still sellers found little difficulty in making 6d. to 1/- per cwt. more money for best qualities of dry fodder. Hard to clear secondary and poor descriptions of old meadow and second cutting. Choice strong horse hay rated from 7/6, 7/9 to 8/3 and 8/6 per cwt; medium strong ditto, 7/- to 7/6; prime old meadow, 5/9 to 6/6 and 6/9; other sorts, 4/6 to 5/6; second cutting, 3/- to 4/6 and 5/- per cwt. In the straw branch, wheaten was in fair supply, but oaten short. Best loads wheaten, 3/6 to 3/9 and 4/-; occasional fancy loads, 3d. more. Oaten around 3/6, and inferior sorts, 3/- to 3/6 per cwt.

MANCHESTER, Friday.—Reaction in futures is welcome, but a period of steadiness is required just now above all things. Cloth inquiries for both India and China are extensive, some of which materialise, but the majority are put back for improved limits. Moderate buying is reported for some minor outlets. Yarns firmer, and some fair lines get booked in both Oldham and Bolton spinnings.

LIVERPOOL COTTON (Closing), Friday.—American fair request. Brazilian quotations mid fair raised 9 points. East Indian quiet. Egyptian moderate business; October 13.96d., November 13.72d., December 13.59d., January 13.46d., February 13.30d., March 13.14d. Sales 10,000, imports 23,159 bales. Market barely steady.

LONDON FREIGHTS—Friday.

Homeward markets continue generally dull; shippers requirements limited, and with more than sufficient tonnage offers to cover same, rates showed no improvement from low levels recently established. River Plate section, however, shows more inquiry, and steamers to load heavy grain up river to United Kingdom-Continent second half October registered 20/-, with option of completing down river at 18/9 per ton, which could probably be repeated. Nitrate ports fairly steady for November-December loads at 37/6 to 40/- United Kingdom, and 3½ dollars United States. North American markets quiet, apart from some business to Continental-Mediterranean ports, but rates steady. Norther range to United Kingdom is worth about 4/3, and 46½ cents Continent, with 5/3 per qr. done to West Italy. Virginia coals would come at about 4 dollars West Italy, and 3½ dollars to 4 dollars South American ports. Australian grain quiet. Outward coal markets quiet, though a moderate inquiry continues as regards South American and Mediterranean trades. Other markets unchanged. Fixtures—Nils, 30,000 qrs. American Northern range to West Italy, October, 20 cents per 100lbs., heavy grain; Elswick Grange, 30,000 qrs., American Northern range to West Italy, October 5/3 per qr. one port, 5/4½ 2 ports of discharge, heavy grain, option Adriatic 5/6.

SUCCESSFUL SHEEP SALE.

Mr. Robert Craigie held his third autumn sale of breeding and store sheep and lambs in the Cattle Market, Dublin, yesterday. Over 4,000 head were penned, including some forward lots of two-shear wethers, for the bulk of which owners considered bids too low, and many lots were passed.

There was a steady demand throughout for almost all the Galway, Cheviot, and blackfaced horny ewes offered at prices slightly below those current at last sale.

Lambs, of which a large number were shown, met a decidedly weaker trade; two-shear wethers realised up to 80s., one-shear ditto to 63s., Galway ewes to 68s., Cheviot ditto to 66s., blackfaced horny ditto 38s., Galway lambs to 38s., Suffolk cross ditto to 38s. 6d., crossbred ditto to 34s.

U.S. INDUSTRIAL PROSPECTS.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Mr. Hoover, Secretary for Commerce, addressing the American Export Manufacturers' Association at a banquet last night, asserted that the national industry was in the early spring-time of recovery, having entered the period of easier credits. "We have a long way to go, however," he added, "to get back to economics stability. There can be no hope of stability in any European currency as long as inflation continues in a considerable part of the world. Unless our commercial community is willing in some way to interest itself in countries struggling with financial problems, we must expect to pay many thousandfold in the loss of the export market and unemployment for our people."—(Reuter.)

BATTLEFIELD PILGRIMAGE.

The arrangements for the unveiling of the Ulster Division battlefield memorial at Thiepval, on the Somme, on November 19th, are now completed. It is expected that a large party will visit Thiepval from Ulster for the unveiling ceremony.

The memorial is a replica of Helen's Tower at Clandeboye, and it is located on the spur of the ridge between Thiepval and St. Pierre Divion. It commands a fine view of the battlefield, and the scheme anticipates the introduction of tablets within the tower to those whose memories it is desired to perpetuate.

There will also be accommodation for a caretaker, and it is intended that this position will be filled by an Ulsterman.

ENGLISH SAILOR MURDERED.

SAINT OMER, Thursday.

The Pas de Calais Assize Court to-day had before it a case of murder, the victim being an Englishman, named Richard Fielding, captain of a London barque. It seems that on arrival at Calais with his ship Fielding met two women, a widow named Petit, who kept a small publichouse in Calais, and her servant. He accompanied them to the Casino, and returned to the publichouse, where the two women, it is alleged, attempted to rob him. Fielding resisted, whereupon the widow struck him on the back of the head with some sort of instrument with such force that he fell unconscious. The two women then threw him out of the window into the street, where the body was subsequently found. The servant, after having confessed to the crime, but the widow strenuously denied having any share in it, the public prosecutor to-day demanded the death penalty for the widow, and said he would accept a plea of mitigating circumstances for the servant.

The widow was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment, with hard labour, and the servant was acquitted.—(Reuter.)

CLAREENA, NENAGH,

Together with 92 acres 1 rood 37 perches, Statute measure, or thereabouts, of superior Tillage and Grazing Lands, held under Fee-Farm Grant, subject to the moderate Fee-Farm Rent of £30 per annum.

DESCRIPTIVE PARTICULARS.

This superb and charmingly-situated Residence, with Lands, is within 3 miles of Nenagh and 5 miles of Lough Derg. It is approached by a pretty avenue, studded with ornamental trees and shrubs, and commands a Southerly aspect.

The Residence contains lounge hall, drawing, dining, breakfast, four bedrooms, bathroom, and w.c., servant's room, kitchen (new range), sculleries, pantries, and dairy, all of which are in excellent order, and will not require any outlay during lifetime of a generation.

Farm Yard contains cow house, 12 bails for cows; 2 calf houses, boiler and store house, piggery, tool house, and large shed for cars and agricultural machinery.

There is also a well enclosed, fully stocked Fruit and Vegetable Garden; also Workman's Cottage, with garden.

DESCRIPTIVE PARTICULARS.

All the land for sale is of excellent quality, and comprises some of the finest fattening land in the county. On Lot 2 there is a comfortable Cottage, with suitable out-offices. The lands are situate about 1½ miles from Blessington, 7 miles from the town of Naas, and only 14 miles from Dublin, and owing to their prime fattening quality and surrounding conditions should prove a most desirable investment.
